SHATTERED BIKE: Bicycle lies in pieces after four-year-old David Fellows of Berrien Springs rode it into side of semi-truck auto carrier on US-31 in village about 2:37 p.m. yesterday. David died about eight hours later at Bronson hospital in Kalamazoo. Village-township police said David was about two blocks from home and alone when accident occurred. (Ellen Pedraza-Bailey photo)

Traffic In Area Claims 4 Lives!

BERRIEN SPRINGS TOT AMONG VICTIMS

By ALAN AREND

Four people died as a result of traffic accidents in southwestern Michigan yesterday and during the night, with three of the deaths contributing to the state's Memorial Day weekend traffic death toll which is expected to be higher county's Fillmore township. The deaths brought Berrien county's traffic death toll to seven this year. Cass county's total is four and Allegan county has had 11 people killed on its roads thus far in 1977.

The Fellows boy was the son of Mr. and Mrs. Dennis Fellows, 432 North Main street, Berrien Springs. According to Berrien Springs village-Oronoko township police, the lad rode his bicycle out of the Quick Clean Center laundromat, junction of US-31 and North Cass street, directly into the path of the auto carrier.

A total of 32 people died in Michigan traffic accidents during the 1976 holiday weekend, state troopers said in predicting that total would be surpassed this year.

Killed as a result of traffic accidents in southwestern Michigan were:

David Fellows, 4, Berrien Springs, who died at 10:30 p.m. in Bronson hospital, Kalamazoo, as a result of injuries sustained when the bicycle he was riding collided with a car-carrier truck in Berrien Springs at 2:37 p.m.

Ralph Walter Hood, 71, Dowagiac, who died at 12:10 a.m. in Pawating hospital, Niles, as a result of injuries sustained in a 10:07 p.m. one-car accident in Cass county's Calvin township.

Pervy Gee, 43, Detroit, was pronounced dead on arrival at Mercy hospital, Benton Harbor, following a one-car crash early this morning on I-94 in Coloma township. Two other people were injured in the accident, but were expected to be released today from Mercy.

Allen L. Guilford, 37, Holland, early this morning

The auto-carrier traveling along US-31 was driven by Merle L. Brookens, 50, of Lake Orion. He told police he swerved to the left and braked in an unsuccessful attempt to avoid hitting the child. The boy and his bike struck the side of the trailer and were run over by the rear two wheels of the auto-carrier, police said.

Mrs. Marie Hickok, nursing supervisor at Bronson hospital, said he died from massive head and internal injuries. Police said no citations were issued and their investigation is closed. Funeral arrangements for David Fellows were incomplete this morning at Mayhew funeral home, Berrien Springs.

In Berrien county's other traffic fatality, an auto driven by Gee and reported by witnesses to be traveling at more than 100 m.p.h. veered off I-94 in Coloma township before crashing into a concrete drainage culvert in the median, state police from the Benton Harbor post said.

Police said Gee was hurled from the auto. Troopers said Gee's auto traveled some 616 feet along the median before hitting the culvert around 2:10 a.m. today.

In Cass county, sheriff's deputies reported that Ralph was pronounced dead at the scene, after he apparently lost control of the motorcycle he was riding and went into the path of an oncoming car on Blue Star highway in Allegan

Hostages Being Held By Gunman

DETROIT (AP) — Police reported today that a gunman has barricaded himself and an unknown number of hostages in a house on Detroit's East Side. The police information bureau said it had no information how many hostages were being held, now why the gunman started shooting.

Sources report the gunman exchanged shots with police, but it was not known if anyone had been injured.

Heroin-By-Prescription Proves No Crowd-Puller

LANSING, Mich. (AP) — A total of five people showed up for the first two public hearings on a House bill to let "registered" heroin addicts get the drug on prescription.

Only the press and the curious came to Friday's scheduled hearing in Lansing, though three legislators hung around for an hour just in case.

Gunmen Warned By Dutch

AKKEN, The Netherlands (AP) — Dutch officials have warned South Moluccan terrorists that authorities will storm their strongholds if any harm comes to the hostages they are holding on a train and in a school in northern Holland, a Justice Ministry spokeswoman said today.

Mrs. Tgos Faber said the gunmen were told "in the last couple of days" that "as soon as we hear harm has come to any hostage, the train will be stormed."

Two gunshots were heard at the train Friday evening but there were no reports of injuries. Police speculated the firing was another bid by the terrorists to convince authorities they were serious about their threats to kill hostages if their demands are not met.

On Wednesday and Thursday the Moluccans displayed some of their bound hostages, blindfolded and dressed in white — the Oriental color of mourning.

Mrs. Faber said it was now believed eight to 10 armed terrorists were holding 55 passengers aboard the train they commandeered Monday morning.

The bright-yellow passenger train is halted in lush pastures and is surrounded by hundreds of Dutch troops and police.

"The fear is that there may be a lot of latent opposition to it that hasn't surfaced yet because it hasn't got a lot of publicity or because of a feeling that it isn't going anywhere," said state Rep. Stephen Monsma, D-Grand Rapids. He chairs a special subcommittee of the House Public Health Committee, which is considering the bill.

But Monsma said the low turnout also could indicate that people are "a little hesitant to take a side one way or another" on the new idea, never tried in the United States but used in England for 60 years.

Sponsored by Rep. George Cushingberry, D-Detroit, the bill would authorize the state to set up an experimental heroin maintenance program, tied to hospitals, for addicts who can be certified by physicians as hooked on the drug. The state's exact plan, however, would need federal approval.

"The objective is not to keep people on heroin but to get them off," said Cushingberry.

Ideally, the plan also could end street trafficking in heroin, heroin-related crimes, and possibly change ghetto attitudes, Cushingberry says.

"We've got kids now growing up idolizing the guys who push heroin because they're the only ones who've got Cadillacs," he said.

Under his plan, addicts could get heroin at a fraction of the price they now pay to sustain their habits. A $100-a-day habit could be maintained under his program for as little as 98 cents, he said.

Heroin for the program would be supplied to the state free or at a token cost by federal laboratories. Cushingberry said but the heroin bill could not take effect unless two other bills now in a House committee also are passed. Those bills would set mandatory prison terms for possession of heroin and would create a "guilty but addicted" verdict for drug-related crimes. That verdict would send addicts to detoxification programs rather than jail.

The final hearings on the Cushingberry bill will be June 3 in Ann Arbor and June 6 in Detroit.

Soviet Jet Crashes In Cuba; 66 Killed

MEXICO CITY (AP) — A Soviet jetliner attempting an emergency landing in fog at Havana airport hit a high-tension wire and crashed, killing 66 of 68 persons aboard, news agencies and diplomats in Cuba reported.

A dispatch from the official agency Prensa Latina, monitored in Mexico City, said 56 of the 58 passengers and all 10 crewmembers died in the crash Friday. The survivors were reported critically injured.

Havana radio, monitored in Miami said the four-engine Ilyushin 62 aircraft struck the runway about 300 feet short while approaching the airport.

In Moscow, the Soviet news agency Tass reported the crash in a three-sentence story. Soviet news media usually avoid or minimize reports of disasters.

Chubby Sailor Ready To Sue

WILLIAM DERENDAL
Too Fat For Carter?

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP) — A 250-pound sailor, one of five ordered from a submarine because they weren't "smart-looking" enough to be seen by President Carter, says he's angry, insulted and ready to sue. "I guess I'm good enough to clean the ship and get only three or four hours' sleep for the last couple nights, but I'm not good enough to stand watch with the President," said Fire Control I.C. William Derendal.

He was one of five overweight crewmen banished from the USS Los Angeles Friday and ordered away from the dock area until Carter boarded the nuclear submarine for a cruise. Derendal said. Capt. Austin Scott, commander of Submarine Squadron 6, told 11 sailors during an inspection Thursday that they could not be aboard during the President's visit because they were overweight. Six of the 11, however, were permitted to go on the cruise, "because they were desperately needed aboard," the fireman said.

Derendal, six-foot-two and 250 pounds, said, "The commadore was very insulting when he made the decision. He said, 'Derendal, you're too fat. Jesus Christ, we don't need you, Derendal.'"

Scott and Cmdr. J.C. Christensen, captain of the submarine, said they were both responsible for ordering the men ashore. "We left the people in because they didn't present a military appearance and they weren't essential for today," Christensen said. "There were some people that didn't contribute to a smart-looking ship. They are obviously in need of losing weight and if they didn't know that before they certainly do now." Navy personnel must meet fitness requirements upon entering the service, and are continually subject to trimming-down orders, but those usually are not issued unless an individual's ability to perform his job has been affected.

A second chubby sailor, willing to be identified only as five-foot-three and 180 pounds, said, "We were standing in line (during inspection) and Commadore Scott said, 'Oh, you're too fat. You can't go. I feel the action was discriminating.'"

Another of the beached sailors, who admitted being 25 pounds overweight, said Scott told him during inspection, "I don't even want to look at you."

Carter, with his wife Rosalynn and former Navy commander Adm. Hyman G. Rickover, helped steer the sub 37 miles out, then dove in 600 feet of water and made a simulated attack on an American destroyer steaming nearby. Carter's press aide, Rex Granum, said that he informed Carter about the overweight sailors incident while at sea and that the President offered no comment.

Derendal said he plans to talk to a civilian lawyer about bringing a suit against Scott and the Navy. "I think I can make a case against the commadore. It would be for conduct unbecoming an officer," he said.

INJURED ASSISTED: State police from Benton Harbor post and Coloma police assist passenger from auto which ran off I-94 into median, striking concrete drainage culvert near Coloma early this morning. A

Detroit man died from accident injuries. Two passengers, both of Detroit, including one pictured, were expected to be released from Mercy hospital today. Woman's wig lies on back of car. (Cliff Stevens photo)

Memorial Day Is Tribute To Courage Of Veterans

Memorial Day is a tribute to the courage of American veterans who won independence, repelled invasion, fought the nation's wars and staked their lives to help other peoples keep or establish their freedom.

Our national strain of courage has run strongly and inspiringly. There was never a time when the nation needed valor that it was not supplied in abundance. This quality embraced those at home whose anxiety for their men in the front lines did not dilute their dedication to great causes.

It is more than two centuries ago that we received the immortal document honored on the Fourth of July. It led to independence and the Constitution guaranteeing our freedoms.

During the intervening generations these fundamentals have been renewed by the blood of Americans whose graves we annually honor.

They have done what they could to further the American dream and make it a shining light for all who came after. We, the living, are now carrying the torch of freedom for all the world to see.

May the flowers with which we decorate the graves of the patriot dead serve as symbols of our determination to fight the battles of that peace for which the world yearns — as they fought the wars which kept the light of our freedom burning.

Commencement Marks The Age Of Optimism

Now is the season when the commencement exercise is in full swing. With multi-colored gowns, hoods and caps, academic processions, traditional music and ceremonial, a commencement is about as close an approach to Old World pomp and ceremony as Americans ever come.

The occasion would not be complete without a commencement orator, whose usual recompense is a degree, honoris causa. The orator can, of course, fall back on what are termed the eternal verities, but unless he has a touch of imagination and a gift for fresh expression, the result — however valid — is likely to sound shopworn.

Youth has the valuable resilience of being able to take life's chances in its stride. The most effective commencement orators pitch their observations on this fact.

Age can offer counsel, but inspiration comes from the heart, which at the age of graduation beats high with courage and noble impulse.

Insult Uncle Sam And He Gives You Gifts

How many times in the last third of a century has the United States been embarrassed by the gross inequities fostered by billions of dollars in misapplied foreign aid? So indiscriminate has American assistance been that on a number of occasions the American taxpayer has found himself supporting both sides of an armed conflict.

It also happens that some of the countries receiving the larger shares of assistance from the U.S. have turned into its sharpest critics. Either the foreign assistance program has developed an inertia of its own — one incapable of reason — or blunderers who have wasted billions of dollars and much potential goodwill in the past are still at it.

Bizarre, indeed, is the discovery that on the very day Pakistan Prime Minister Ali Bhutto was delivering a hysterical speech accusing the United States of "a colossal conspiracy" to topple his regime, the U.S. was transferring two American destroyers to the Pakistani navy.

In fact, it appears that the U.S. stepped up shipments of armaments to Pakistan following the imposition of martial law and other repressions last March. If any lesson is to be learned from that, it is that the more repressive and insulting a government becomes the more armaments and other assistance it can expect from the United States.

That is not the stated purpose of foreign assistance programs, but somebody is not paying attention to the rules.

Folks Fear Heavy Power

If Congress is reacting to the flood of major legislative proposals sent to it by the White House in a negative way, and so far it is, the administration would do well to look beyond the stated intent of the proposals for the reason. In almost every case, Congress is disagreeing not with the goals but with the methods proposed to achieve them.

Behind the congressional recalcitrance is a fear of consolidating presidential power. It is going along with the concept of a new department of energy, but it is diluting the powers of the first energy secretary.

Congress also agrees basically with a national energy policy, but it is not going along with the idea of new energy taxes to be rebated in turn for non-energy uses. Considerable sentiment also exists among the lawmakers for building incentives to explore for new energy alternatives into national energy policy. This element was almost totally lacking in the Carter plan.

So far, Congress also is balking at major proposals put forth by organized labor which would have the effect either of increasing the power of labor leaders or the administration (as in unqualified repeal of the Hatch Act).

As the branch of government closest to the people, Congress has not forgotten the strong sentiment which arose during last year's campaign against the concentration of power in Washington. The majority of its members are demonstrating an extreme reluctance to vote against that sentiment.

We Shall Not Forget

Consumer Advocacy Plan Called More Bureaucracy

Editor.

I oppose HB 6118 and SB 1262 and respectfully ask that other citizens do likewise. These Bills (called the Consumer Protection Act of 1977) would establish the ACA (Agency for Consumer Advocacy) to speak for the interest of the consumer. The agency would have no regulatory power of its own, but would be authorized to advocate consumer interest before other government agencies and courts and provide the public with information about consumer issues. In formal adjudicatory or rule making proceedings, the ACA would be authorized to intervene as a party, could seek judicial review, act as a clearing house for complaints, gather information through written interrogatories. Funding will be paid for from taxes — 15 million 1978 — 20 million 1979 and 25 million 1980.

Our society has become a great leader in the competitive system of our free enterprise form of government which already has built-in stabilizers for consumer protection and for the consumer through the local Chamber of Commerce, Better Business Bureau and the paign, vowed a regulatory agency. It's purpose would be to "improve the way rules, regulations, and decisions are made and carried out, rather than issuing new rules themselves" and forming a whole new layer of bureaucracy.

A letter cost $1.13 to mail from Michigan to Omaha while I can telephone, with evening rates, from Michigan to Omaha for $1.13 per minute. The free enterprise has reduced cost in past 50 years for telephone from $5.00 to $.31, while government increased cost from $.03 to $1.13 in past 50 years for a postage stamp. An example of government involvement is with OSHA spending on rules and regulations and causing errors in building of roads, dams, buildings and bridges. It would be shocking to the American people how many millions of dollars of taxpayer's money has been wasted because of these rules and regulations alone. The market place is where protection can be given to the public on local, state, and national level and the market place is where America grew; not through government.

The cost of this new bureaucracy would begin at $5 million and increase annually. This cost eventually returns to the consumer and businesses who pay the taxes for America. These new bills are asking good, sound, old, and new businesses to submit to government many reports — exempting some types of businesses and not others — to prove to the government the people are protected. It's difficult to conceive that government holds more expertise in the market place than business.

These bills are another layer of bureaucracy. Any savings would be outweighed by increased cost to the taxpayer and business with increased cost of complying with additional red tape and operating expense.

Government would do more for the consumer by holding down inflation, putting government to work, finding better many local, state, and national trade associations. The construction groups, the professional association, all the any retail and manufacturing association businesses have already demonstrated their ability to protect the consumer because of the expertise of these groups who can support the government for over-all good to the consumer. This means that by tomorrow the farmers of this vicinity will be in possession of checks amounting to $4,000, really the first returns of any consequence for the season. The boats took 1,500 cases and the Pere Marquette train took the

There is a plan on foot to ask the owners of the land on the north side of the canal to give 25 feet frontage on the canal for the purpose of widening the waterway to the river to the width of 125 feet. If the canal were widened to 125 feet it would be possible for vessels to tie up along the canal docks without obstructing navigation. The matter should be taken up before the Big Four begins its proposed bridge across the canal.

Democrats Find Rules Changed

CHICAGO — There is nothing quite like a trip to the Second City to clear a vice presidential head of any delusions of grandeur which might be collecting therein.

Although Walter F. Mondale seems well on the way to becoming the most active and influential vice president in history, he hasn't escaped the partisan political chores that presidents traditionally fob off on their second bananas.

That is why, less than 24 hours after his return from an exhausting 10-day round of talks with world leaders, Mondale hustled out to Chicago to show the Carter colors at the annual fund-raising dinner of the Cook County Democratic Central Committee.

In its way, the Chicago trip represented as great a challenge to Mondale's diplomatic skills as his recently concluded negotiations with South African Prime Minister John Vorster. His presence in Chicago was about as welcome to the Cook County Democrats as his tough tal on apartheid was to Vorster.

It's not that Mondale is unloved by Chicago Democrats. During last year's campaign, after all, he spent so much time among them he practically qualified for an alderman's seat. It's just that Fritz Mondale isn't president of the United States. Jimmy Carter is, and by the old rules, he should have been on the dais this week with the biggest wheels of the biggest political machine left in American politics.

But Jimmy Carter doesn't play by the old rules, as his fellow Democrats are finally beginning to realize. He sent his regrets — and his vice president. Such an affront would have been unthinkable if Hizzoner Richard J. Daley were still among the living. Even with Daley in his grave, the Carter snub was deeply resented. "Mondale," sniffed one Chicago congressman, "is about eighth best. And there isn't any two through seven."

Fortunately for Fritz, Democrats elsewhere aren't nearly so picky as the Cook County crew.

Like most presidents, Carter is cultivating a lofty leader-of-all-the-people posture. His Los Angeles speech to the United Auto Workers, a liberal union which backed him early and well, was the closest thing to an overtly political appearance that Carter has made this year.

But Mondale has taken up the slack, appearing at nine party functions so far. Four were Jefferson-Jackson Day dinners, the traditional movable feast of the Democratic party, in Atlanta, Detroit, Little Rock and Raleigh. In addition, he has been to Milwaukee for Wisconsin Gov. Pat Lucey, to New York for Sen. Daniel P. Moynihan, to Iowa for Sen. Dick Clark and to Minnesota for the unsuccessful Democratic contender for the congressional seat vacated by Agriculture Secretary Bob Bergland.

Mondale, unlike some of his predecessors, is careful to tout the boss' horn, not his own, when he hits the road. He is not a Spiro Agnew, trying to out-Nixon Nixon. But neither is he a Hubert Humphrey, cheering from blind loyalty. On the hustings, as in the White House, Mondale is not above ribbing both Carter and himself.

Aides insist Mondale rather enjoys his political duties. "Besides, he knows some of this stuff goes with the territory," one staffer said.

The important distinction between Mondale and his predecessors is that political chores and ceremonial functions no longer constitute the bulk of the vice president's "territory." And Mondale is taking pains to insure that he doesn't inadvertently fall into the traditional mold.

When he makes a political trip, it is usually only a few hours in duration. Wherever possible, he tries to schedule his absences from Washington for weekends, when the press of official business is lightest. "We're trying to pace them so they don't cut into his responsibilities here too much," an aide said.

Lindy Symbolized Remarkable 20s

"In the spring of '27, something bright and alien flashed across the sky. A young Minnesotan who seemed to have nothing to do with his generation did a heroic thing, and for a moment people set down their glasses in country clubs and speakeasies and thought of their old best dreams."

Thus, in 1901, four years later, Scott Fitzgerald recalled the impact of Lindbergh's flight to Paris.

"Something bright and alien." Yes, Lindbergh throughout his life stood apart — his solo flight, in that respect, was perfect self-expression. Yet, even so, he was very much a part of one of the most remarkable decades in our or anyone's history.

The 1920s tried to adopt an attitude of moralistic scorn toward the 1820s and Frederick Lewis Allen called it the ballyhoo decade — his expression for what we would call the PR hype — and there is something to that, but the brilliance was there too, unprecedented and since unequalled.

Next fall, I am giving a course in the literature and history of the 1920s at Dartmouth, and as soon as the course was announced it generated very great interest.

No wonder. When the troops returned from France after World War I and marched through clouds of ticker tape, they were marching out of the 19th century and into the 20th. All across the board, in the arts as well as in sports, in music, painting, and literature, ballet and the dance, there was a tremendous release of energy.

Consider baseball. Before the war, it had been a low-scoring affair. In 1920, Ruth hit 54 home runs, and a man died of excitement in the bleachers watching Ruth hit the 1927, the year of Lindbergh's flight, Ruth hit an astonishing 60 home runs.

Bill Tilden utterly dominated tennis, winning the championships in 1920, 1921, 1922, 1923, 1924, 1925 and 1929. As in baseball, pre-war tennis had been tactically conservative. Tilden played a wide-open, all-court game, his big serve the equivalent of Ruth's home run.

It was happening in boxing, too, and football. Look at some old movies of Jack Dempsey, champion from 1919-1926. His opponents look like photos in a barbershop, Victorian "classic" fighters. Dempsey is mobile, throws punches from anywhere, and with devastating effect. Red Grange, the Four Horsemen and others carried out a similar revolution in football.

In the arts, the same energy poured forth. The old forms were swept aside, by Joyce, Hemingway, Pound, Eliot; by Picasso and the modern movement in painting; by Stravinsky; by Diaghilev and Isadora Duncan and Nijinsky.

Lindbergh was something bright and alien in one sense, but he also belonged to that period.

On the evening of May 21, 1927, Lindbergh landed at Le Bourget airport. But, symbolically, his flight never ended. That flight goes on, involving all who are firm in spirit and fearless about the future.

Lindbergh lies in a grave cut from rock in Maui, Hawaii. His epitaph says it all: "If I take the winds of the morning — and dwell in the uttermost parts of the sea..."

Teachers' Union Backs Candidates

With one Benton Harbor teacher's spouse already on the Benton Harbor board of education, the teachers union in the district has endorsed two candidates in the upcoming June 13 election who have teacher-related ties. The Benton Harbor Education association, bargaining unit for teachers, has endorsed Freddie Moore and Mrs. Jacqueline Pearson for the two four-year terms that expire. Moore and Mrs. Pearson oppose the two incumbents who are up for reelection, Bernard Beland and Mrs. Irene Fox.

Moore, of 536 Colfax avenue, served as a substitute teacher in the district last year. Mrs. Pearson's husband, Rev.

Two Given Nod After Screening By BHEA

William Pearson, is currently a substitute teacher in the district.

The present board includes one member, Arthur Crump, whose wife, Janet, is a full-time teacher in the Benton Harbor system.

The endorsements by the union followed the appearance of three of the four candidates before a screening committee of the BHEA recently.

Beland said he was given an abrupt invitation to appear before the committee, at an hour that came during his working hours. Beland, a custodial supervisor for the St. Joseph public schools, replied by letter that he could not attend. Mrs. Fox met with the committee but immediately informed the group she could not answer questions, on advice of the board's attorney, because contract negotiations with the teachers had begun just the day before.

Mrs. Fox, a surgical nurse and farm wife who was endorsed by the BHEA four years ago, said she did not ask for BHEA backing. She added that one possible reason for withdrawal of the endorsement stemmed from two years ago when she voted in a unanimous vote with all other members of the board, to withhold a day's pay for teachers who staged a one-day protest "strike" in September of 1975.

Mrs. Pearson and Moore met and talked with the screening committee, according to Mrs. Canilla Hunt, BHEA president.

The candidates each were given a set of questions in advance by the screening committee.

Five of the 13 questions asked the respondent's views on problems involving race. Other questions dealt with such matters as due process for students and staff, teaching of birth control, desirability of evaluation systems for administrators and faculty, teacher tenure and licensure, and methods of assessing students' needs, among others.

Beland denied a rumor brought to The Herald-Palladium by a BHEA member that Beland had been ordered by the St. Joseph school district to move to St. Joseph and that he had his home in Fairplain up for sale. The rumor was that Beland would leave the district after getting elected but that the board then would hand-pick his replacement.

Beland said he has never been asked, or ordered, to move, and that his home is not up for sale. He continued, saying that he is vaguely turning over in his mind the thought of selling his four-bedroom house at 2535 Lu-Al drive in Fairplain when his oldest child goes away to college next year. "The house will start to outgrow the family then," he said.

Beland said he has lived in nine different houses within the Benton Harbor district, and has no particular reason for moving out even if he should decide to sell. "I like Fairplain," he declared.

There will be a fifth candidate on the June 13 ballot, Mrs. Ethel Frazer, 1446 US-33 North, Benton township. Mrs. Frazer entered as a candidate but then announced her withdrawal. Her withdrawal came after the deadline for such action, too late to take her name off the ballot. She said she was throwing her support to Mrs. Pearson and Moore.

BH Water Station Back In Operation

A broken water main valve was repaired and pumping resumed at the Benton Harbor water plant yesterday afternoon after the broken valve caused a shutdown of the pumping station for nearly 20 hours, according to John Gregory, water superintendent.

Gregory said the city's pumping station was back in operation at about 3 p.m. yesterday. Benton Harbor was forced to draw its water from the St. Joseph water plant after the valve on a 12-inch main at the plant broke at about 5 p.m.

Thursday.

One of the causes of the valve breakdown is believed to be rusty bolts on the valve, according to Gregory.

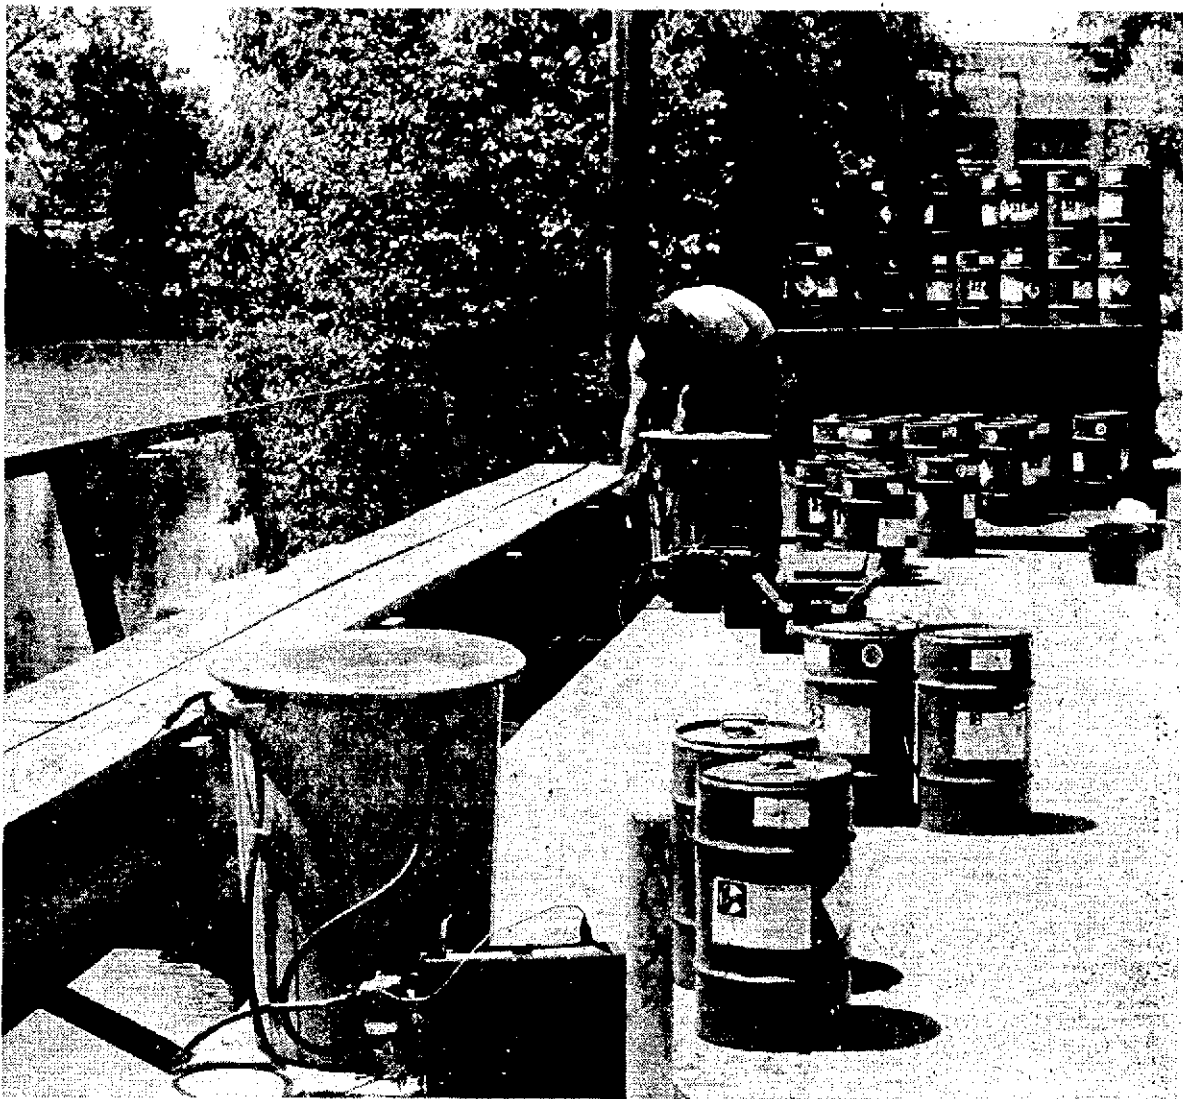

The break in the water valve was discovered at about 5 p.m. Thursday and the city was forced to shut the plant down at about 7:30 p.m. to repair the valve. Customers in a small area on the north side of the city and the Higman Park area in Benton township were without water for about two hours Thursday night.

KILLING LAMPREY: Dennis Rosenow of Fish and Wildlife Service checks flow of lamprey-killing chemical which was put into Paw Paw River this week at Watervliet Paper Company dam. Cleaner water led to successful spawning of lamprey in the river, and this resulted in the first chemical treatment ever of the eels, which would have migrated into Lake Michigan and killed fish by feeding on their blood. (Cliff Stevens photo)

Paw Paw River Cleanup Has Side Effect--More Lampreys

By JOHN VANDEN HEEDÉ
Sports & Conservation Editor

There's some good and bad news from the U.S. Department of the Interior on the Paw Paw River in Berrien county.

The good news is that the river is cleaning up because of pollution controls. But that is also the source of the bad news. The water quality is now good enough to allow successful breeding of the deadly lamprey eel.

Interior's Fish and Wildlife Service moved this week to keep the lamprey in check through a chemical treatment from the Watervliet dam down to the Benton Harbor area.

"We have known the lamprey have been in there for about three years," declares Bill Gaylord, who is in charge of lamprey control for Lake Michigan and Lake Huron. "Each year a few more have been showing up."

"I think it's basically because of the water chemistry condition of the water. There has been a lot of cleaning up going on in these rivers. It's making them more conducive to fish and also for lamprey. Lamprey didn't survive in there before. They always spawned but never survived."

Workers are treating the Paw Paw river now because one of the lamprey are getting near the parasitic stage, where they would go out into Lake Michigan to feed on the blood of fish.

It takes about four years for lamprey to reach the parasitic stage (six inches long and about the size of a lead pencil). A year later they return to streams to spawn as 18 to 20-inch adults.

The eels die after spawning. "Gaylord expects little if any fish kill because of the chemical treatment of the Paw Paw."

"The concentration levels of the chemical were extremely low," he notes.

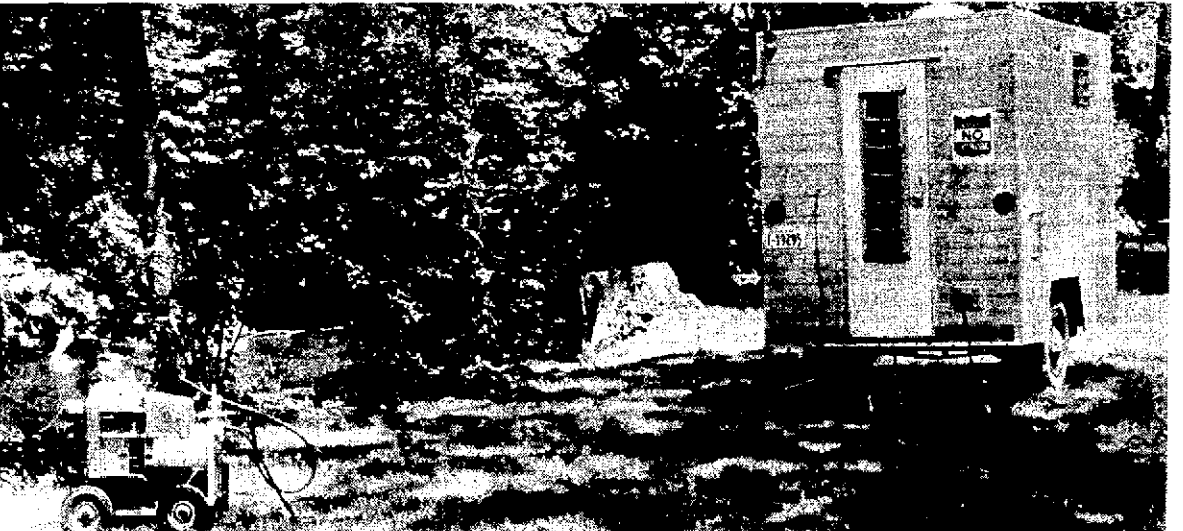

Last week's treatment was the first ever on the Paw Paw. Other southwestern Michigan streams get regular treatment every few years, with Pipestone creek and Blue creek scheduled for follow-up treatments week.

Lamprey once wiped out all the game fish in the Great Lakes, but because of the control program the Big Lakes now offer a booming sport fishery.

"We feel we are basically on top of the lamprey because the fish are there," adds Gaylord. "We get a little hot spot of scarring showing up once in awhile. We've got one around Frankfort right now. The same thing happened down in your area a couple of years ago. We don't know why we have these hot spots."

Even so, fishermen will attest that there's more good news than bad in the continuing lamprey story.

PORTABLE LABORATORY: Fish and Wildlife Service workmen used this portable laboratory to check water samples from Paw Paw River downstream from the Watervliet dam. Chemical was put in the water this week to kill lamprey eels. Biologists tried to insure that the chemical-water mixture would kill lamprey and not fish. (Cliff Stevens photo)

Deadbeat Dads Handed Month In Jail

Berrien Circuit Judge Chester J. Byrns Friday imposed 30-day jail terms on two Benton Harbor fathers for failing to pay support for their children. Joseph Beckmann, special investigator for the Berrien friend of the court's office, reported Byrns held Robert G. Kizer, of 123 North Seely street, in contempt of court for $4,190 arrears for three children on ADC. He was also continued on a two-year probation term.

The judge noted that if Kizer can come up with some money towards the arrearage, and the friend of the court's office approves, he can be released from jail. But Byrns ordered Kizer to find work within 30 days of his release or spend 60 more days in jail.

Beckmann said Kizer's last support payment was last March, and he has made only three payments in the past two years. The judge also ordered Tommy Gorman, of 633 Edgemoor, to start a two-year probation with 30 days in jail for $1,877 arrears for one ADC child. He was also ordered to find work within 30 days of his release or spend 60 more days behind bars. Beckmann said Gorman has made nine support payments since 1970.

Announce Charismatic Mass

KALAMAZOO — A Diocesan Charismatic Mass will be celebrated at St. Augustine Cathedral, Kalamazoo, at 1 p.m. Pentecost Sunday, May 29.

The Most Rev. Paul V. Donovan, Bishop of Kalamazoo, will celebrate the Mass with other priests of the Diocese.

Also participating will be members of at least 10 Catholic charismatic prayer groups from Benton Harbor, Douglas, Kalamazoo, New Buffalo, Otsego, Paw Paw, St. Joseph, South Haven and Three Rivers.

The special Pentecost Mass will be marked by charismatic expressions of worship, including spontaneous praying and singing aloud and in tongues, elevation of hands and prophecy. These expressions of worship will be permitted at certain points during the Mass and have been given approval by Bishop Donovan.

According to Bishop Donovan, the Catholic charismatic renewal which began about 10 years ago, is a movement in the church which stresses deeper life in the Holy Spirit and an openness to the release of all the gifts of the spirit which were commonplace in the early church.

Besides gifts of faith, hope and love, more unusual gifts of healing, miracles, prophecy (speaking for God), tongues (speaking or singing an unknown language of the Spirit), and discernment of good and bad spirits are encouraged by members of the renewal, the Bishop said.

In an allusion delivered by Pope Paul VI on Oct. 11, 1973, certain common elements in the renewal were noted: "an appreciation for deep prayer, both personal and communal; a return to contemplation and a stress put on praise of God; the desire to give oneself completely to Christ; a more diligent use of Scripture; a great openness to the calls of the Holy Spirit; a generous fraternal commitment; a willingness to become involved in services to the church. In all this," said the Pope, "we can recognize the mysterious and secret work of the Spirit who is the soul of the church."

'Picnic' French Word

The picnic gets its name from the French Pique-nique (to pick up a trifle). Such outdoor picnics today are far from trifling. They range from elaborate catered banquet feasts outdoors, to simple meals picked up at the local delicatessen, "carry-out" stand or supermarket.

There's just something about eating outside that puts an edge on appetites. So, whenever you pack up, or pick up, remember to take plenty.

Breads with spreads — preferably canned or non-perishable — are an excellent choice. They need little special treatment and give what nutritionists call "high density" food value — which is another way of saying ample nutrients without too many calories — plus the energy for picnic fun.

The congregation of First Baptist plans to hold services temporarily at Whitcomb Tower.

The congregation was organized in 1883. The church building it sold to Progressive Baptist church was constructed in 1909 and is the third church building at that location for the church. Earlier churches were destroyed by fire.

The congregation of First Baptist church is currently seeking a special use permit from the St. Joseph township planning commission to construct a new church building on Cleveland avenue, south of Nelson road.

THE NEW TESTAMENT No. 1. The Birth of Jesus

During the time that Joseph was engaged to marry the Virgin Mary, she was found to be with child by the Holy Spirit. Joseph, a man of stern principle, decided that he should break the engagement as quickly and as quietly as possible.

"But while he thought on these things, behold, the angel of the Lord appeared unto him in a dream, saying, Joseph, thou son of David, fear not to take unto thee Mary thy wife; for that which is conceived in her is of the Holy Ghost. And she shall bring forth a son, and thou shalt call his name Jesus: for he shall save his people from their sins." (Matthew 1:20-21)

"Then Joseph, being raised from sleep, did as the angel of the Lord had bidden him, and took unto him his wife: And knew her not till she had brought forth her firstborn son; and he called his name Jesus." (Matthew 1:24-25)

Coloma Church

By CLIFF STEVENS
Coloma Correspondent

COLOMA — The dedication of the newly-installed Carter Memorial Bell Tower will be held during a special 10:30 a.m. service Sunday, May 29, at the Coloma United Methodist church.

Located inside the 25-foot high polished aluminum steeple will be a 98-year-old bell, found last year after being missing for over 35 years.

The tower is a gift of Roger and Bertha Carter, longtime members of the church, given in memory of Carters' forefathers who helped organize the first class meetings in the area and who helped build the first Methodist church in Coloma in 1879.

The bell, made by a pre-Revolutionary War bell maker, Henry McShane & Co., of Baltimore, Md., originally hung in a steeple at the present church when it was built in 1879, with the date inscribed on the bell.

In late 1939, the bell and steeple were removed from the church because the supports had weakened and church members feared the bell might fall and damage the church. At that time, the bell was put into storage.

Through an error, the bell was sold for scrap and disappeared.

Carter renewed his efforts to locate the missing bell in 1974, and two years later after searching throughout the area, he located the bell in a barn in Bainbridge township.

Carter purchased the bell and launched plans to have it refinished. Included in his plans were ways to restore the bell to the church property. He designed an aluminum steeple which would house the bell and included plans for electrical controls to ring the bell.

A steeple drawing was done by another member of the church, William "Wes" Besson, a retired employee of Modern Light Metals, Boyer road, Coloma, which fabricated and built the edifice.

Earlier this week, a crane from Pearson Construction company, Benton Harbor, lifted the tower, complete with bell, to the top of the church. Following the placement of the tower, wiring devices for the electric controls were installed by Ray Dinaghy of Dinaghy Electric, Coloma.

Complete with cross, the polished aluminum steeple rises approximately 25 feet above the peak of the church.

Sunday's special service also celebrates Pentecost Sunday and will include the recognition of graduating seniors.

The Rev. Carl L. Hausermann will present the dedication sermon.

Members of the Carter family are planning to attend.

Prior to his retirement, Roger Carter was a prominent businessman and for 25 years was supervisor of Coloma Township. During his term of office, he was among those instrumental for the restoration of the original Berrien County Courthouse at Berrien Springs.

To Dedicate Bell And Tower

MADE IN 1879: Church bell of Coloma United Methodist church was made in 1879 by the Henry McShane & Co., of Baltimore. Bell originally hung in a steeple on the church but was removed in late 1939 when members feared the weakened supports might not hold the bell. Roger Carter located the missing bell in a barn in Bainbridge township and restored it to the church property.

BELL RINGS AGAIN: Coloma United Methodist church bell missing for over 35 years again rings atop the church. The new 25-foot high polished aluminum steeple containing bell was placed on the church this week and both will be dedicated Sunday, May 29. Bell had been missing since late 1939 and was located after a two-year search by Roger Carter.

FINISHING STEEPLE: New 25-foot high polished aluminum steeple to hold 98-year-old church bell at Coloma United Methodist church receives finishing touches before being raised to position on church this week. (Cliff Stevens photos)

'Your Problems' By Ann Landers

Invite Them--Sans The Kids

Dear Ann: We are a childless couple (by choice), and our home is not child-oriented. Two couples have ruined recent visits for us by including toddlers and pre-schoolers in late dinner invitations, when they knew that we are not set up for entertaining young children.

When they go out to a restaurant they get a babysitter, but when it's just to someone's house, they don't bother. The visits were totally child-dominated and adult conversation was impossible.

I've always heard that a good social rule is to assume children are not invited unless they are specifically included. Please comment. Sign me -- Not Running A Day Care Center

Dear Not Running: I agree with you.

By now, you know who the offenders are. If you invite them again, tell them it's an adults-only evening and to please make arrangements to leave the children at home.

They're Busy

Dear Ann Landers: I am one of the many hotel telephone operators who work at a big metropolitan hotel, and our switchboards are always very busy.

During certain periods of the day we are run crazy with all the lines going at once. It's impossible to take long messages. Yet some people think we are social secretaries. They give us "messages" as long as letters.

Why don't they realize there are other callers besides themselves? It is impossible to give good service if ten calls are waiting and one person takes too long.

Dozens of hotel operators will be grateful if you will ask the public to show a little consideration. And please, if it takes us a while to answer a call, don't say, "Oh, you're there! I thought all of you had died." -- Gripped

Dear G.: Here's your letter but don't expect it to change anything. Some people are impatient, demanding and sarcastic and they take out their frustrations on the first person they talk to -- which in many instances is you.

Man Goes First

Dear Ann Landers: I realize you have problems greater than this one, but I've been bugged by something for a long time and would appreciate an answer.

What is the proper social procedure for entering a revolving door when a man and a woman are together?

Should the man allow the woman to enter first and then push from the rear or should he enter first and make the pushing easier for her?

Please help me. Every time I see a revolving door, I run the other way. -- Mr. O From New York

Dear New York: The man

ANN LANDERS goes first. He should, however, say something -- such as, "Pardon me for going ahead but I'll do the pushing."

CONFIDENTIAL to Third Time Since Christmas: See a lawyer about separate maintenance if you don't want a divorce, I realize a man must "let off steam" but a woman needs teeth in her mouth. Your marriage sounds like a nightmare. Wake up.

How young is too young for a child to learn about sex? That's just one thing you'll find in Ann Landers' new booklet, "How, What and When to Tell Your Child About Sex." Send 50 cents in coin, along with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope to Ann Landers, P.O. Box 11995, Chicago, Ill. 60611.

Opening lead -- 8♠

By Oswald & James Jacoby

In case anyone isn't thoroughly confused by the principle of restricted choice, we will close with a simple hand.

East wins the club lead with the ace and returns the deuce of diamonds. South has a problem at trick two.

He can take the diamond finesse which has a theoretical 50 per cent chance to succeed or he can rise with the ace of diamonds, pull trumps and go after hearts. If hearts break 3-3 (a 36 per cent chance), he can discard his queen and 10 of diamonds and make the slam that way.

Just to make things easy for guessers both plays work this time, but there still had to be a superior play.

It all depends on what you know about your West opponent. If he is the sort of player who likes to attack against a slam contract you assume that he would have opened a diamond if he held the king. In that case the finesse is a certainty.

On the other hand if you are sure he would not lead from a king after the way you reached your slam, restricted choice comes into action. You say to yourself, "If he didn't hold the king of diamonds he might well have led that suit, therefore the odds are that he does have the king and the finesse should be refused."

Ask the Jacobys

A Pennsylvania reader wants to know if it is correct to use a preemptive bid of three against an adverse opening bid.

The answer is that you certainly may, provided that your partner will understand that you are preempting.

Your Birthday

For Sunday, May 23, 1977

YOUR BIRTHDAY -- May 23, 1977 Your social activities will be accelerated considerably this coming year. Be careful, however, that you do not make the pursuit of pleasure your first priority.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Be doubly courteous to all you come in contact with today. A display of rudeness or poor manners will tarnish your image.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) It may be necessary to take on some of the responsibilities of a loved one today. Do your duty with a smile.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) The road to romance could be a rocky one today if you're bossy with the one you love. Let him or her be their own person.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Avoid setting down rigid rules for the family today. They'll get everyone uptight, but won't be obeyed.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Persons who don't agree with your every word will arouse your ire today. Are you sure you're right and they're wrong?

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) It may be best to do without today rather than to borrow. The loan you would make has too many strings attached.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Hoping to please your mate today may turn out to be a trying task. However, it will be well worth it if you do.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) You could find yourself in a situation today where someone else gets the attention you think you're entitled to. Play it cool.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) An impulsive friend could pull a trick today that could complicate your life. Steer clear of pals with wild ideas.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) You must be extremely careful today not to step on anyone's toes in order to get something you want. The scar will be slow to heal.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-March 20) An idea you feel strongly about will not strike a responsive chord with one whom you hoped it would. Watch your temper.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Things you prize should not be loaned to irresponsible people today. They're not likely to come back in the same good condition.

To find out more about yourself, send for your copy of Bernice Osol's Astro-Graph Letter. Mail 30 cents and a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope to Astro-Graph, P.O. Box 489, Radio City Station, N.Y. 10019. Be sure to specify your birth sign.

Monday, May 24

Some interesting conditions will develop this coming year where your career is concerned. An internal shuffle could put you in a very advantageous position. For more information about yourself, send for Gemini's Astro-Graph Letter. Mail 50 cents and a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope to Astro-Graph, P.O. Box 489, Radio City Station, N.Y. 10019. Be sure to specify your birth sign.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Don't stick your neck out unnecessarily today. As a further caution, avoid those who might get you mixed up in some of their tricky adventures.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Decisions made under pressure today won't be wise ones. Don't let anyone maneuver you into a corner where this could happen.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) If you're performing a task you don't particularly relish today, take extra safety precautions. Frustration or even anger could lead to carelessness.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) A friend may do something you find highly objectionable at a social gathering today. Avoid using words that are too harsh in admonishing him.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Keep an especially watchful eye on the family today, particularly the younger members. Don't let them wander too far and get into mischief.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Have a feather touch and not a lead foot on the accelerator today. So what if it takes you a little longer to get where you're going?

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Don't be the only one in the crowd with a checkbook today. You'll be put out if pals come up with excuses rather than a share of the expenses.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) You have the urge to be a leader today, but make sure your orders and ideas are sound. Erratic actions will not gain you followers.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Curb your reactions to be bluntly critical of something a friend did in the past that's been bugging you. Today's not the day to comment.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) You're liable to take a gamble today because of misplaced confidence in a proponent of the venture. Your chances of gaining are virtually nil.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) There are more people observing you today than you realize. One who is unfriendly is hoping you'll stub your toe.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Admit it if you don't know how to do something today rather than trying to tough it out. It's far less embarrassing than fumbling up.

Tuesday, May 25

Opportunities previously denied you where you earn your bread and butter will spring open this coming year. Advancement in your field is likely.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) A business matter you're involved in could unexpectedly take a fortunate turn today. You must stay on top of things to make it happen.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) In one-to-one situations, take a subordinate role or be very cooperative today. The best things happen when you're a team player.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) It's unlikely you'll have much time for fooling around today. Your nose will be to the grindstone and that's good, because industry pays rewards.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Don't take yourself or things you're involved in too seriously today. The more relaxed you are, the smoother your road will be.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) This is the day to do those little chores around the house you've been putting off. You'll be amazed at what you can accomplish.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Projects of a mental nature should be your cup of tea today. Give those muscles a rest. Put that bright mind to work.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) You have a knack today for dealing with money or things of value. If you follow your instincts, chances for acquisition are excellent.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Concentrating on things important to you personally is not selfish today. There are times when it's necessary to think of yourself first.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) If there's something you need to get your head together about, don't ask advice. Get off by yourself and you'll get it sorted out.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Because you treat others in a warm, friendly fashion today, you'll be repaid in like manner. A smile and a kind word open doors for you.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Don't sell yourself short in any competitive match-up today. You could surprise everyone once the action transpires.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Believe in yourself today and the world will follow suit. The magic formula for you to heed is "Yes, I can."

To find out more about yourself, send for your copy of Bernice Osol's Astro-Graph Letter. Mail 50 cents and a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope to Astro-Graph, P.O. Box 489, Radio City Station, N.Y. 10019. Be sure to specify your birth sign.

Repot African Violet

You can repot an African violet just about any time of the year, says a consumer information specialist. But spring and fall are preferred.

Use a pot that is just one or two sizes larger than the present pot. The specialist suggests buying sterile potting soil and mixing it with equal parts of peat moss and vermiculite.

Women See Doctors More

NEW YORK (AP) -- More women than men in the United States visit doctors, according to the Health Insurance Institute.

The Institute says that estimates based on government figures show that eight to 10 of all women have visited a doctor at least once a year, while the male ratio is seven in 10.

I have allergies. Sometimes, after a machine-gun series of sneezes I get a hemorrhage in the eye. This lasts for weeks. I'm embarrassed because I have to constantly explain this. Can this ever affect the vision? -- Miss S. W., Mass.

Dear Mr. M.: Many people have been captivated by the mystique of vitamin E and ascribe to it almost supernatural powers. Enthusiasts are sure that it prevents cancers, heart disease, cirrhosis of the liver, psoriasis, delays the process of aging and restores vitality. To them, it is the sought-after fountain of youth.

Vitamin E belongs to a group known as the "tocopherols." It is found in high concentration in foods such as nuts, lettuce, wheat germ and in some parts of beef.

Overloading one's self with vitamins serves no purpose for people who are eating a normal, nutritious diet.

In the absence of any known deficiency, a simple multi-vitamin supplement is sufficient for most people. When there is a suspicion that a deficiency exists, it can be tested and followed by adequate replacement. Fortunately, our body has a fuse which in general keeps it from being overloaded by vitamins that can be harmful in too large concentration. Yet, even with this built-in wisdom, overconcentration of vitamins A and D can be harmful.

Rape Case Judge Says He Won't Quit

By ELLEN M. PORATH
Associated Press Writer
MADISON, Wis. (AP) — A county judge, confronted with a campaign for his recall after pronouncing rape a "normal" reaction by juveniles to sexual permissiveness, says he won't resign because he has too much community support.

Dane County Judge Archie Simonson said Friday that he has plenty of supporters in the county and was getting favorable response from around the country as well.

"A lot of support has been coming from church people, ministers and the like," Simonson said.

Besides, he said, "You can't recall a judge for an unpopular decision."

But the judge's critics were angered more by his courtroom remarks than by the punishment he meted out Wednesday at a hearing for a 15-year-old boy. The youth, who had not contested charges of second-degree sexual assault in the rape of a 16-year-old girl, was ordered to spend a year at home under court supervision.

A 14-year-old boy accused in the case was sentenced to one year at a group home in Milwaukee. A third boy was given immunity from prosecution in exchange for testimony against the others.

"This community is well known to be sexually permissive," Simonson said in court. Referring to provocative women's clothing, he asked, "Should we punish severely a 15- or 16-year-old who reacts normally to it?"

The girl who was raped was wearing jeans and a blouse over a turtleneck sweater.

Protesters, most of them women, who were angered by Simonson's statements, marched in front of the city-county building Thursday, and announced plans for a petition to force a recall election. The clerk of Dane county, with a 1974 population of 300,800, said they would need 21,024 signatures. A judge could also be impeached by a two-thirds vote of the state legislature.

Simonson, 52, said Friday that his position had been misconstrued.

"I don't understand why those gals — and I'll call them gals whether they like it or not — don't understand it," he said.

He suggested that feminists spend their time working to prevent rape rather than picketing his office.

"If you eliminate the tease and provocation, you may well have a decrease in the incidence of sexual assault," he said.

The judge said the city's massage parlors, nude bars and "escort services" which he said provide prostitutes create an atmosphere that "may have an effect on commission of sexual crimes."

But the protesters, organized by the local chapter of the National Organization for Women, said, "Rape is a violent crime, a terrible crime, and here is a judge calling it a normal reaction."

Police Chief David Couper said, "Rape is not a crime in response to sexual arousal, but an assaultive, violent act."

"I'm quite disturbed by his comments," said Madison Mayor Paul Soglin. "Even if he's correct in his judgment about sexual permissiveness, that's no excuse for assault."

State Sen. Timothy Cullen asked the Wisconsin Judicial Commission to conduct a hearing that could lead to censure or reprimand of Simonson, and suggested a mandatory rape seminar for all judges in the state.

Jane Pearlmuter of the Dane County Project on Rape said she was concerned that Madison area women might be more reluctant to report rapes following Simonson's comments.

GRANTING THE HIKE: Michigan Public Service Chairman Daniel Denlow reads report that grants a $65.3 million rate hike to Detroit Edison Company in Lansing Friday as Commissioner William Ralls looks on dejectedly. The measure passed by a vote of 2 to 1. Although the rate hike is about half of the $138 million sought Ralls, a Democrat running for governor, voted against it, saying Edison deserved only $38.8 million. (AP Wirephoto)

PSC Tries Carrot 'N Stick Plan To Hike Utility's Output

LANSING, Mich. (AP) — Bills for Detroit Edison residential customers will go up an average 31 cents under a state Public Service Commission decision that means $65.3 million more in annual revenue for the company.

On a 2-1 vote Friday, the PSC also promised to reward Edison with a rate hike whenever it operates its generating plants efficiently, but to cut its rates when the plants are shut down too often.

The $65.3 million rate award is nearly half the $138 million Edison sought. Included in the $65.3 million is a $22.8 million temporary increase awarded Edison in January.

Friday's increase brings to $181 million the total amount of rate hikes Edison has won for various reasons since September. Some of those increases were court-ordered, but most came with PSC approval.

Edison officials apparently were satisfied with the rate award, neither praising nor criticizing it. Utilities normally are quick to criticize the PSC when they feel they've been unfairly treated.

The new reward-punishment plan approved by the PSC uses rate increases as financial plums to encourage Edison to keep its plants operating as often and as efficiently as possible.

Edison will get a rate increase whenever 85 per cent or more of its total generating capacity is available for use during a year. It will be forced to cut rates when its system can run at only 70 per cent capacity or less.

Barbs Punctuate PSC Rate Hearing

LANSING, Mich. (AP) — If Public Service Commissioner William Ralls had set Detroit Edison's rates last year, the company would be bankrupt now, PSC Chairman Daniel Denlow has charged.

Ralls, meanwhile, says Denlow has "no class" and "no tact" for bringing "off-the-wall" allegations up at a public meeting. There is little love lost between Denlow, a Republican, and Ralls, a Democrat aspiring for the governor's job in 1978.

But Friday, a meeting to decide Detroit Edison's latest rate request was punctuated by barbs between the two men. It was the last meeting at which both will appear, since Ralls is resigning Tuesday to campaign.

Ralls cast his usual lone dissenting vote Friday. He said the company deserved only about $38 million.

"The difference between the majority and the minority on this commission is that we're held accountable for our decision," Denlow retorted testily, implying that because Ralls votes in the minority his proposed rates can't be tested against reality.

Denlow then pulled out some sheets of calculations, done by the PSC staff, that analyzed the effect of Ralls' dissent on last year's $62.4 million Edison rate hike. If Ralls' lower rates had been in effect, the company would have collected less revenue and been able to pay only 60 cents per share of stock, 85 cents less than its required dividend, Denlow said. That would have forced it to declare bankruptcy, he said.

Pastor Going Back To Pulpit

GRAND RAPIDS (AP) — A Grand Rapids minister convicted of soliciting for prostitution will be back in his pulpit next week.

Refusing to cast another stone at the Rev. Robert Bast, officials of the Reformed Church in America voted to let him return to the post June 5.

Gaylord Anderson, vice president of the consistory at Garfield Park Reformed Church, said Friday the vote by the local church's governing body was unanimous.

The 41-year-old minister was among 22 persons arrested in late April during a police crackdown on prostitutes and their customers. All 22 men were charged with soliciting.

Police said the minister's arrest occurred after he approached two police women posing as prostitutes, who recorded his conversation with them.

The Rev. Mr. Bast at first pleaded innocent. But the first Sunday after his arrest, the minister returned to his pulpit to tell a weeping, applauding congregation that he had sinned.

On May 12 he changed his plea to no contest and was convicted of the sexual misdemeanor, which carried a $100 fine and $10 for court costs.

Anderson said the local church's decision was reached May 17 but was not made public until action by the classis, governing body for the entire Reformed Church in America.

The classis met Tuesday, Anderson reported, and agreed to let the minister return. However, Anderson said he could provide no details of the classis action.

The Rev. Raymond Riewerts, pastor of the city's Fifth Reformed Church and an official of the classis, refused even to confirm that the Rev. Mr. Bast will be restored to his pulpit.

As for the Rev. Mr. Bast, he said only, "I'm not at liberty to comment."

After the arrest, the Rev. Mr. Bast resigned from the pastoral post he had held six years. Church officials imposed a 30-day leave of absence while deciding if they would accept his resignation.

When Anderson was asked if the leave of absence would be the only church penalty suffered by the Rev. Mr. Bast, he replied, "Only time will tell. Nobody can tell what will happen six months down the road."

Van Dam Unruffled By 'Anarchist' Tag

DETROIT (AP) — Philip Van Dam, the first U.S. attorney personally fired by a president, says he is not bothered by Atty. Gen. Griffin Bell's charges that he is an "anarchist" trying to defy the system.

Van Dam was fired last week by President Carter after the Republican attorney refused to submit a requested resignation. A Justice Department spokesman said Van Dam was the only one of 94 incumbent U.S. attorneys who refused to resign when asked by the administration to do so.

Bell — who pledged during his Senate confirmation hearing earlier this year to do away with the patronage system in selecting U.S. attorneys — told a press conference Thursday that Van Dam was fired because "we had an election last November and the Democrats won."

Bell added that the Justice Department had not evaluated Van Dam's performance before deciding to oust him.

"Why should I evaluate a fellow who is an anarchist?"

Bell asked.

Van Dam said Friday that Bell's comments didn't upset him.

"I think he must be joking — don't you?" the former aide to Michigan Republican Sen. Robert Griffin asked.

Fired Michigan Fair Manager Vows He's Not Leaving Post

LANSING, Mich. (AP) — The manager of the Michigan State Fair says he won't leave his job, even though he has been fired by Agriculture Director B. Dale Ball.

Fair Manager Lester Lund, a former real estate consultant who took over the fair in 1974, revealed Friday that Ball had ordered him fired because Lund planned to eliminate the horse show from the 1978 fair and stage it separately.

ST. SIMONS ISLAND, Ga. (AP) — President Carter says Secretary of State Cyrus R. Vance and Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko will meet twice more in the next four months in an effort to put curbs on American cruise missiles and Soviet city-buster missiles.

More Arms Talks Slated, Carter Says

Until Carter's announcement, Vance and Gromyko had been known to be planning only one more session following their negotiations in Geneva last week on a new strategic arms limitation treaty.

Flying here from Cape Canaveral, Fla., where he spent nearly nine hours cruising aboard a nuclear-powered attack submarine, Carter told reporters aboard Air Force One:

"The thing that's of most concern to us is that the Soviets have a number of very large missiles — the SS-18 ... the thing that we have that the Soviets are apparently concerned about is the cruise missile ... those are the two basic problems, the two basic concerns."

Carter said there was no way to predict whether limits on the two types of weapons could be negotiated but said, in apparent reference to the Vance-Gromyko talks in Geneva, that the United States and the Soviet Union are now "actually, seriously ... trying to reach some common ground."

When the Geneva talks ended, Vance and Gromyko said there would be more ambassadorial level talks in Washington and lower-rank discussions in Geneva, but that they personally would meet only once more.

After three days of talks, Vance and Gromyko admitted that serious differences remained in the way of a treaty to replace the five-year SALT I accord, which expires this October.

The Geneva talks ended in a three-part "framework" for a new strategic arms limitation agreement between the two countries.

The accord included a proposed treaty running until 1985, based generally on arms levels set at the 1974 talks, a three-year protocol to deal with disputed issues such as the missiles and a statement of principles for future talks on deeper cuts in the arms levels.

As he left Geneva, Gromyko accused the United States of not giving up on "its attempts to achieve unilateral advantage" in the arms field or "its attempts to under mine the security of the Soviet Union." Carter, a one-time career Navy officer whose specialty was nuclear submarines, was asked at Cape Canaveral if his presence there was "in any way connected with the SALT talks."

Carter conducted an emergency drill while cruising on the submarine in which the sub's nuclear reactor was "scrammed," or shut down without warning.

"With absolute certainty, I can say there is no finer ship in the world," the commander-in-chief said. "I'm very proud of what I see ... Its safety is superb."

Rickover, once Carter's mentor and Navy superior, said the President's performance at the helm was "superb."

Carter's sentimental journey beneath the waves undoubtedly recalled his days at the Naval Academy, his tour aboard the conventional submarine Pomfret in the Pacific after World War II and his work under Rickover who developed the nuclear Navy.

Lawn Pro's Debunk Some Beliefs About Moisture

If the lure of the "green, green grass of home" escapes you, it's probably because your lawn maintenance techniques need a little help.

Here are some tips from Sears lawn care experts that should assist you in turning on the green:

Temperature and wind velocity determine the rate at which lawns dry out, and the amount of water required to keep them healthy.

As a rule of thumb, in the absence of rain, most lawns need 1 to 1½-inches of water a week. You can determine the amount of water your grass is getting by setting out a few flat-bottomed containers at various distances from your sprinkler, then in an hour measure the amount accumulated in each.

Contrary to popular belief, it is better to water in small amounts than not to sprinkle at all. Even a little moisture can mean the difference between survival and starvation. Cut a lawn sample three or four inches deep. Unless the soil feels moist to the touch, it needs water.

No harm is done to the sod plug removed if it's put back and stepped on. When you can see footprint impressions in your lawn, that's another sign your lawn is thirsty.

When grass has sufficient water it bounces right back after traffic has passed.

You can water grass when it's convenient — either morning, noon or night. Daytime watering doesn't scald the grass nor does an appreciable amount evaporate. In late spring, lawns may need a moderate drink within a week after hot weather sets in.

Make certain the proper mower is used for the job. Reel mowers are generally used when a fine, low cut is desired. Rotary mowers are suitable for a higher cut. No more than one-third of the grass blade length should be cut at each mowing to prevent browning.

Alternate mowing patterns to keep grass blades more erect and to ensure a more even cut. If using heavy equipment, avoid repeated turns over the same area to prevent turf damage.

And finally, keep lawn mower blades sharp to assure a clean, neat cut.

PREPARATION IS KEY

Tips For Good Paint Job

By ANDY LANG
AP Newsfeatures

If you are thinking about painting the outside of your house, here are some things to remember:

Don't start unless you are willing to spend a lot of time in the preparation of the surface. This means removing loose dirt and dust; scraping and wire brushing blistered, peeled and scaled areas; priming any bare spots; countersinking all nails; priming with a metal primer and covering with putty; replacing any loose caulking, especially around doors, windows, utility inlets and exhaust pipes; getting rid of mildew; washing off excessive chalk; and dulling all high-gloss areas.

Begin painting the side of the house that is shaded at the moment. If possible, follow the sun around so that you are painting where the sun has already been. This will prevent the sun from drying out the paint too quickly, not to mention the fact that it's a lot more comfortable to paint in the shade.

While professionals sometimes paint across a house completely at each level, it is better for most persons to start painting at an upper corner of a house and work downward. The ladder then can be moved a few feet at a time as necessary. Paint only the portion you can reach comfortably without stretching. The ladder should be placed against the house so that the distance from its base to the house is about one-fourth the height of the ladder; thus, if you are using a 16-foot ladder, its base should be 4 feet from the house.

CUTWORMS PLENTIFUL

It seems there are more cutworms bothering gardeners this year than most.

There are many different species of cutworms, the adults of which are moths. The larvae present are now overwintered. They get their name by their feeding habits. Usually active at night, they will cut off pepper, tomato, cabbage, melon and other plants. Sometimes they will even attempt to pull the cut-off portion of the plant under the soil. During the day you can find them 1 to 2 inches below the soil surface at the base of the plant. When exposed they will often curl up. They are black to brown with various designs or mottling on them.

Sevin or Diazinon can be used for control. Sevin may be effective when applied to above-ground parts. Diazinon can be used the same way, but is best used as a drench applied at the base of the plant like you would to control root maggots. Ask for Extension Bulletin E-760B at the extension office in the courthouse at St. Joseph.

FROG EYE

Fusarium blight, a fungus disease, is showing up on lawns, particularly sodded lawns that have been fertilized well. Normally it will not show up until June or July, but the unseasonably hot weather has brought it on earlier. Dead patches appear often as small rings with healthy grass in the center, hence the name Frog Eye.

It is very difficult to control. Benlate or Teren 1991 should be applied at the rate of eight ounces per thousand square feet. Water the lawn the night before and drench the fungicide into the root zone immediately. Those who plan on sodding should buy a Fusarium-resistant variety of bluegrass.

Clean Carpet Is A Healthy Carpet

By ANDY LANG
AP Newsfeatures

Keeping your carpet clean isn't only a matter of helping it retain its bright appearance, although that certainly is a sufficiently desirable end in itself. What many might consider an even more important reason is that cleanliness prolongs the life of a carpet in a considerable degree.

Carpets should be vacuumed at least once a week, using a cleaner equipped with a brush or beater-bar and without teeth, combs or rough edges. The cleaner should be moved slowly to allow the suction to pick up embedded soil particles. Although the vacuuming can be done in any direction, the final strokes should be parallel to give the carpet a uniform surface appearance. The cleaner should go over a given area from three to seven times.

For daily surface cleaning, a nonelectric carpet sweeper will do the job nicely. It is designed to take up lint, crumbs, some dust and other surface litter. A straight suction-type vacuum cleaner also does this as well as picking up all surface dust. In both cases, however, little or no embedded dirt is removed, which is the reason for the more thorough once-a-week cleaning with a vacuum cleaner that combines strong suction with a revolving brush. The brushes should be kept clean and replaced when worn out.

What happens when a carpet accumulates so much soil that it becomes dulled? A special cleaning is in order. The Carpet and Rug Institute recommends one of three methods — the wet, an absorbent powder cleaning and the use of an aerosol foam spray.

Wet cleaning is suitable for most carpets. Use a mild, neutral detergent made especially for carpet cleaning and follow the directions for dilution and application. Avoid using soap, ammonia, washing soda or any strong household cleaning agent. Do not get the carpet too wet. Remove all furniture from the room before you start or place thick plastic wrap or aluminum foil under and around the legs of chairs, tables and other furniture. When the carpet is clean, brush the wet pile in one direction with a soft brush or a special plastic or wooden rake finishing tool. Dry the carpet by opening the windows and, if practical, turning up the heat.

Absorbent powders are often used for the removal of surface oil, following the manufacturer's directions carefully. To use aerosol foam spray, apply a thin layer on the carpet, work it in with a wet sponge mop and vacuum when dry. Here, too, be sure to follow the manufacturer's directions.

Should you wish to use a professional cleaning establishment, try to get a recommendation from a neighbor and investigate both "on location" or "plant" cleaning. A pro can also remove stubborn stains or repair torn areas.

Wolf Hearings Are Adjourned

Extradition and habeas corpus hearings for William H. Wolf, 18, accused of the 1974 stabbing death of his mother in Texas, were adjourned Friday in Berrien Circuit court to allow Wolf to consult an attorney.

Berrien Circuit Judge Chester J. Byrns appointed the St. Joseph law firm of Bleich and Peterson to represent Wolf during the proceedings in Berrien county, and adjourned the hearings until the middle of next week.

Byrns ordered a court-appointed attorney for Wolf after ruling the young man had insufficient funds to hire private counsel.

A Michigan governor's warrant has been issued ordering that Wolf be turned over to Texas authorities on a charge that Wolf murdered his mother, Mrs. Bonnie Kay (Gustafson) Wolf, formerly of St. Joseph. She was found stabbed to death in her home near El Paso, Texas, on April 15, 1974. Police said the body was found by William Wolf.

When advised of his extradition rights yesterday, Wolf told the judge he did not wish to waive extradition from Michigan. The other part of the scheduled court proceeding, in which Wolf requests the prosecutor's office and sheriff's department to show cause why he is being held in custody, was not heard.

In his application for a writ of habeas corpus, Wolf claims he "is not the accused in question." Texas authorities would be required to prove that the man in jail is the William H. Wolf sought for trial in Texas.

Wolf also alleges that probable cause for his arrest and detention was based on an involuntary statement made to police while Wolf was under the influence of marijuana.

Wolf was arrested by Berrien sheriff's deputies on March 7, 1977, on the Texas charge. Mrs. Wolf was the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Gustafson, St. Joseph, and the widow of Morley G. Wolf, who died in 1973. The couple had operated a farm in Eau Claire before moving to Texas.

Student Drowns

GRAND RAPIDS, Mich. (AP) — The body of a young woman pulled from the Grand River here has been identified as a 26-year-old African student attending Michigan State University.

The woman's name was being withheld until her parents in Tanzania could be notified, police said.

A medical examiner said the woman was the victim of an accidental drowning Friday.

Hospital Expansion Okayed

PETOSKEY, Mich. (AP) — The state health department has approved plans for expansion and modernization of Little Traverse Hospital. The hospital won approval for 27 new rooms, modernization of equipment and purchase of a linear accelerator cancer therapy machine. It had asked for 52 rooms, but the health department said that would supply more than 100 beds if the hospital put two to a room, and that was too big an expansion for the 272-bed institution. The expansion is estimated to cost $25 million. The hospital hopes to raise $5 million in the community and borrow the rest through a bond issue. The approval means the hospital can go ahead with plans to merge operations with those of Lockwood MacDonald Hospital.

Court Backs Cole's Wife

PONTIAC, Mich. (AP) — The widow of former General Motors President Edward Cole has won a court order forcing attorneys for her late husband to turn over all of Cole's personal papers. Oakland County Circuit Court Judge Alice Gilbert ruled that Atty. William Tripp and his law firm must turn over to the court all papers jointly owned by Cole and his widow, Dollie. The court will inspect the documents next Wednesday to determine Mrs. Cole's interest and possible violations of her rights to privacy if those papers are returned to the estate. Judge Gilbert said attorneys for Mrs. Cole, Tripp and the National Bank of Detroit, special administrator of Cole's estate, should be present for the examination of the papers. Cole was killed earlier this month when his twin-engined plane crashed near Kalamazoo.

Principal Wins Judgment

IRON MOUNTAIN, Mich. (AP) — A Dickinson County Circuit Court jury has returned an $8,404 verdict in favor of a school principal who was bumped downstairs in 1974 when he was superintendent of the West Iron County Public Schools. Carl Nieminen had filed suit against the board of education and five former members. Nieminen contended he was coerced into resigning as superintendent June 18, 1974, and was reassigned as principal of the middle school. Two of the five school board members were recalled after the demotion, while two others failed to win reelection last year. The fifth left the board because of ill health.

Lumber Adrift On Lake

HARRISVILLE, Mich. (AP) — Coast Guard officials today were trying to trace the origin of several hundred pieces of lumber spotted floating in Lake Huron, about 14 miles east of here. The Coast Guard said the lumber mass was spotted Friday by the captain of a passing steamship. The lumber mass was described by the steamer's captain as about eight miles long, and 50-to-100 yards wide. The mass consisted of 4-by-4s, from 2 to 12 feet long, which appeared freshly cut, the captain said. A Coast Guard spokesman said no vessels in the area were known to be hauling lumber. There are no sawmills along the Lake Huron shore in that area, Alcona County Sheriff's deputies said. The Coast Guard said no effort will be made to recover the lumber, but vessels are being cautioned to avoid the area.

POLICE ROUNDUP

Leg Wound Puts

Woman In Hospital

Benton Harbor police said a woman was shot on Territorial road shortly after 9 p.m. Friday, but it isn't known yet if the shot was fired by someone else, or self-inflicted.

Reported in "serious" condition this morning at Mercy hospital was Lina Mae Hill, 23, of 187 Lake street. Patrolman George Hawblitzel reported that a single slug, apparently from a hand gun, entered above the right knee and lodged in the hip. No weapon was found, it was reported.

Hawblitzel said the victim reported she shot herself. But the officer said also that an alleged witness reported that a man fired the shot.

Police were told that a woman entered the Office bar, 205 Territorial road, and then followed a man outside with a bottle she allegedly threw at him. A shot was reported fired and the woman reentered the bar, seeking help. The investigation is continuing, police said.

'Flight Plan' Goes Awry, Police Say

A Benton township man was arrested early this morning on a gambling charge, but not until after he jumped on a bicycle and raced out of a driveway, onto the street and into the side of a moving patrol car, according to township police Sgt. Donald Watson.

Watson said another man on foot also was bumped by the patrol car, but kept on running and disappeared.

Watson said a dice game was observed in a lot off East Main street and Pine street by Patrolman Steve Hansen about 3:35 a.m. Watson said about 10 to 15 men suddenly saw the officer and scattered. A man who reportedly jumped on a bike sped onto East Main street, just as Watson and Patrolman Kim Fowler approached in a patrol car, Watson said.

Arrested was Howard Wills, 20, of 1244 Blossom lane. Watson said Wills was to be booked on a charge of gambling. Wills was bruised, but did not require hospital treatment, Watson said.

Fan Switch Linked To BH Blaze

Benton Harbor firemen said a blaze that apparently started from a faulty window fan switch extensively damaged an upstairs bedroom of the Eliza Miller home, 820 Broadway, about 10:35 p.m. Friday.

Firemen said the blaze was confined to the bedroom, but the entire second floor received heavy smoke damage.

Benton township firemen at 8:35 a.m. Friday extinguished a mattress fire in a bedroom of a home occupied by Betty Lewis, 237 Lawrence drive. Cause of the fire was undetermined, firemen said.

Hunting Pair

DETROIT (AP) — Divers and a helicopter were continued to search today for a Grosse Pointe Farms businessman and his wife, presumed drowned after their newly-purchased motorboat was found empty in Lake St. Clair.

William and Barbara Kane were on their first outing in their brand-new 18-foot fiberglass runabout when they vanished Thursday, police said.

Eau Claire Plaque To Honor Viet Dead

EAU CLAIRE — A memorial to Robert Handy, a civilian refugee advisor killed in Vietnam in 1969, will be dedicated at 1 p.m. on Memorial Day here. The names of 30 other Berrien, Pipestone and Sodus township men killed in action will also be listed on the memorial plaque.

At the ceremony, Village President Caswell Crowder will pass title of the land to be known as Lions Park to Eau Claire Lions club President Stanley Chisek. The ceremony will take place at the park site, east of the Middle school.

Berrien Circuit Judge Chester J. Byrns will speak at the dedication of the memorial. In addition to Robert Handy, son of the late State Rep. Gail Handy, the names of the following men will also appear on the plaque: Isadore Dunetz, William Suits, Gerald Ross, William Gano, Duane Kesterke, Rodney Curtis, Arthur Walters, Ellis Airgood, Emil Reschke, Henry Reschke, John Parrish, Robert Johnson and James Sommers. Others include Edward Bowman, Robert Strong, Dolph Odiorne, James Edinger, Roy Uebler, Richard Van De Warker and Laurence Froelich.

Lions club members have urged relatives of the men whose names will appear on the plaque to be present for the Memorial Day service and dedication.

Area Records Four Fatalities

Hood apparently lost control of his auto as he was headed north on Calvin Center road, about a half-mile south of Brownsville street in Calvin township.

The auto ran off the road jumping a creek and flipping over twice before landing on its wheels in a field, police said. Hood was alone in the vehicle at the time of the 10:07 p.m. accident.

Funeral arrangements will be announced later today at Groner funeral home.

In Allegan county, Guilford's accident occurred around 2:30 a.m., according to Allegan sheriff's deputies. Driver of the auto was not injured and the accident remains under investigation.

Has Victory Celebration

NEW YORK (AP) — For the second time in two days, George Willig made his way to the top of the World Trade Center. This time he used the elevator.

Willig, the "human fly" who scaled the sleek outside wall of one of the twin towers Thursday, ventured inside for the first time Friday night at a celebration dinner in the posh restaurant atop the 111-story building.

The accompanying pack of reporters, camera crews, autograph hunters, guests and restaurateurs contrasted sharply with the solitude of his feat the day before.

"This guy gets more attention than Nixon," said one startled diner.

FREE AT LAST: "I'm greatly relieved," Emory Allen Belcher said Friday as he left the Hillsborough county (Fla.) jail a free man. Computer caught up with him this week, 26 years after he escaped from a convict camp and settled down 100 miles away. But since he had a clean record those years, prosecutors decided not to try him for the escape. "I'm going back to my family and to my work," he said. (AP Wirephoto)

Cyclists, Three Others Hurt In Area Crackups

Five people, including two men on motorcycles, were injured Friday in four traffic accidents investigated by Twin Cities area police.

Berrien Sheriff's Deputy Abbott Taylor said two motorcyclists were injured about 9:40 p.m. when one cycle collided with the rear of the other on Roosevelt road, near Marquette Woods road, Lincoln township.

The two are William T. Atkins, 37, of 2150 Oak Lawn drive, and Gerald D. Bookout, 29, of 4375 Roosevelt road, both of Lincoln township. Both were admitted to Memorial hospital, St. Joseph, where they were reported this morning in "good" condition. Deputy Taylor said Atkins was ticketed for careless driving.

Sheriff's officers said Terry E. Eason, 18, of 6808 Territorial road, rural Benton Harbor, was treated at Mercy hospital after an auto he was driving swerved to avoid another and rolled over off North Branch road at Park road, Bainbridge township, at 1:34 p.m.

Deputies Van Clark and Jack Root identified the other driver as Clifford C. Hosner, 73, Wilber

Hill road, Route 1, Dowagiac. The officers said Hosner was ticketed for failure to yield the right of way. His auto was not struck, it was reported.

Benton Harbor police said Cecilia E. Burke, 44, of 971 Ramona drive, Benton township, was treated and released from Mercy hospital after an auto she was driving and two others were involved in a collision on East Main near North Hull avenue about 3:45 p.m.

Police said an auto driven by Thomas E. Kepler, 22, of Buchanan, struck the rear of the Burke auto and forced it into the rear of an auto operated by Paulette A. Houart, 29, Lawrence. The other drivers were reported unhurt. Police said Kepler was ticketed for failure to stop in a clear, assured distance ahead.

In Stevensville, police said Augustin Kras, 47, Brownstown road, Sawyer, was injured when an auto he was riding in and another collided about 11:05 a.m. on Red Arrow highway at John Beers road. Police said Kras decided to seek his own treatment. He was a passenger in an auto driven by Mrs. C.T. Kras, of the same address.

The other driver was identified as Deborah S. Franks, 2511 Brice, Benton township, who was reported unhurt. Police said Mrs. Kras was ticketed for disregarding a red traffic light.

Welcome to Stevensville HOME OF CLASSICS

SIGN ALTERED: Stevensville Police Chief Martin Watson said seven Lakeshore high school seniors were arrested about 12:15 a.m. today for allegedly painting an alteration to sign he said originally read: "Welcome to Stevensville, Home of Kathy Necas, Miss Blossomtime." Watson said sign is on John Beers road at George street, Stevensville. "Class of 77" also was sprawled in paint across Lakeshore high parking lot. Watson said similar vandalism occurred on May 18, and included obscenities on village police car. Watson said sign is worth more than $100, so seven were booked on charges of malicious destruction of property over $100, a felony. They were identified as Wayne R. Spencer, 17, of 2975 Mansueto drive; Thomas A. Baumgartner, 18, of 2969 Pagoda lane; Christopher D. Horton, 17, of 1509 West John Beers; Everin R. Fulkerson, 18, of 368 Rainbow drive; Donald J. Richards, 17, of 5770 Ponderosa; James H. Rosenhagen, 17, 1526 Marquette Woods road; and Tamara Aungst, 2444 West Glenlord. (Staff photo)

FEEDER BEACH AT SOUTH HAVEN: Bulldozer spreads some 200,000 cubic yards of sand along Lake Michigan shoreline in South Haven creating artificial beach. Funded by Army Corps of Engineers, project, expected to be completed next week, is intended to replenish beach with sand where extensive erosion has occurred. Wave action will eventually drift sand down shoreline and beach will have to be renourished periodically. Work on $488,000 project is being done by

Watervliet Voting On 3 Candidates, Millage

WATERVLIELT — Three candidates seeking two available school board seats, and a one-year, two-mill property tax levy are on the Watervliet school district ballot for the June 13 annual school election.

Seeking the two, four-year terms are incumbent George Shane and challengers George Lawton and Mrs. Pattie Ann Andrasi.

The election polls will be at the South elementary school and will be open from 7 a.m. until 8 p.m. election day.

The school board is seeking the additional property tax to help pay for operations that are part of a tentative 1977-78 school budget of $2,180,000.

The two mills would raise $62,000 in local taxes and bring in another $73,000 in state aid while boosting the district's total tax levy to 28.496 mills (the present levy is 26.496 mills and includes 2.12 for debt retirement).

School officials have already given seven probationary teachers layoff notices, but have said four will be rehired if the millage issue passes.

If the millage fails, the four teachers will not be rehired and there will be cuts in the music and elementary athletic programs, in supplies and equipment purchases and in the maintenance program, school officials have said.

Each of the three school board candidates has expressed support for the proposed tax levy.

Shane, 51, route 2, M-140, is seeking a second, four-year board term. He is now the school board president. He is co-owner of Shane Orchard Supplies and he and his wife Connie have seven children.

Lawton, 40, of 200 East Parsons in Watervliet, served on the school board from 1971-73 and was school board president for three years. He is manager of the engineering department at Watervliet Paper Co. He and his wife Beverly have five children.

Mrs. Andrasi, 34, of 4425 Yund road, Benton Harbor, is now the president of the Watervliet PTO and is a former Whirlpool Corp. executive secretary. She and her husband Larry have one child.

The two candidates receiving the most votes will get the two board seats.

Incumbent Alton Wendzel did not seek re-election.

Millage, Board Seats At Stake In Cassopolis

CASSOPOLIS — Cassopolis school district voters will decide the renewal of a 17.9-mill property tax levy and choose two of four candidates seeking two four-year seats on the school board in the annual school election here June 13.

The one-year millage issue will continue the district operating millage rate at 26.9

mills. The district also levies 7.2 mills for debt retirement. The 17.9 mills is expected to generate $1,020,000 in local property tax revenue. The district's proposed budget for 1977-78 is $3 million.

The candidates for the board include incumbents Frank Woods and Carol Willard and challengers Charles Henkel and Charles Russell.

Woods, 55, is president of the Cassopolis First National bank. He has been on the board one term. He and his wife, Marion, have two children and live at route 3, box 12.

Mrs. Willard, 35, is owner of the Jesswein flower shop. She has been on the board four years. She and her husband, William, have two children and live on M-62 South.

Henkel, 36, route 4, Genewa lane, is a biology teacher at Brandywine high school near Niles. He and his wife, Sharon, have one child.

Russell, 49, is self-employed. He and his wife, Mary, have three children and live at 270 North O'Keefe. He was an unsuccessful candidate for the board last year.

Riverside School Millage, One Seat Up For Decision

RIVERSIDE — Electors in the Riverside school district will hold an annual meeting at the school here on June 13 to elect a school board member and vote on a proposal permitting the district to levy a 10-mill property tax rate for school operations.

The proposal includes the renewal of a seven-mill issue that has expired and an additional three mills. If approved, the levy would run for one year.

The meeting will begin at 8 p.m. with the election and millage vote to be held between 8:30 and 9:30 p.m. The Riverside district (Hazar No. 6) is one of two K-8 districts in Berrien county.

The term of Arthur Chubot, board treasurer, is expiring. Board candidates are nominated from the floor. Chubot has served on the three-member board for 25 years. Board terms are for three years.

If approved, the millage issue would raise about $23,000, according to Jerry Davis, secretary of the school board. Currently the district millage rate is 15.376, which includes 8.376 from the county allocation board.

The district's proposed budget for 1977-78 is about $72,000, according to Davis. In the 1976-77 year, the budget was $68,915. There are 85 students attending the Riverside school.

One-Time BH Runnerup Oceana's 'Mrs. Asparagus'

By JERRY KRIEGER
Farm & Features Editor

A onetime runnerup for the Blossom Festival in the 1950s returned to the Twin Cities Friday in another role of festival royalty.

Mrs. Gerald Slocum, now a pretty 41 and mother of five children, came here as "Mrs. Asparagus", queen of the fourth annual Annual Asparagus festival in Oceana county. Her purpose was to invite area residents to the Asparagus festival at Hart and Shelby, in western Michigan, June 10 and 11. She also offered to send prize recipes from the festival recipe contest to all who request the booklet.

Mrs. Slocum is the former Phyllis Young, a 1954 graduate of Benton Harbor high school. Her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd Young, now reside near Traverse City. Her father is a retired former vice president of Superior Steel Co. here.

The Young family when it lived in Benton Harbor was well known for its musical talents. Mrs. Slocum, in fact, sang professionally before her marriage.

Born and reared in the city, she went rural in a big way when she married a young Oceana county farmer. They now farm 1,500 acres of fruit and Christmas trees near Hart, in a partnership with her husband's brother.

While their farm is in the midst of an expanding asparagus producing area, the Slocums don't raise asparagus.

But "Mrs. Asparagus" is a convincing ambassador for this crop.

She didn't ride in the Blossom parade here this year only because her float didn't meet one requirement for entry in the May 21 pageant. But she is scheduled to ride in a dozen other parades in Michigan this year, including the Asparagus festival parade in Hart on Saturday, June 11. She also is booked for a number of radio and television appearances, and appeared in an interview on WHEB here Friday.

That address to get the asparagus recipe booklet is: Mrs. Asparagus, Hart, Mich., 49420.

Patrol Bill Veto Urged

LANSING, Mich. (AP) — Any bill which would halt state police patrol of Detroit freeways should be vetoed, the Michigan State Police Troopers Association has told Gov. William Milliken. The group said in a letter to Milliken that he should consider vetoing a House-passed budget bill which would turn the city's freeway patrol duties over to Wayne County sheriff's deputies. State police patrols have been well received by Detroit residents, who won't be satisfied "with second-class police protection" by "former unqualified jailers" from the sheriff's department, the letter said.

NATURE LAB: Volunteer help is building 24 by 36 foot nature laboratory at Sarett Nature Center, Benton township. Materials for building were purchased through a $3,500 donation from Civic Benefit club's Antiques on the Lake show, according to Chuck Nelson, center naturalist-director. James Mullins, Stevensville carpenter, has volunteered his services along with others in building laboratory which will be used for pond study operations and field work analysis. Laboratory, expected to be completed in two weeks, is located about 200 yards southwest of center's headquarters. (Walter Booth photo)

Entries in the Blossomtime photo contest must be submitted by 5 p.m. Thursday, June 9, according to Kenneth McKeown, chairman of the contest committee. The entries can be mailed or delivered in person to the Blossomtime, Inc., office, 311 Colfax avenue, Benton Harbor. Judging is scheduled for Sunday, June 12, at the Twin City camera club headquarters, 521 Elm street, St. Joseph, with awards being presented at the completion of the judging. The contest is divided into two categories, one for photographers 17 and under and the other for those over 18. First, second and third place awards will be made for both prints and slides in each category. Any Blossomtime event may be the subject of the photo submitted.

U-M Eyes Big Season Despite All-American Losses

Bo Expects Offensive Line To Be Top Strength

By JERRY DYKSTRA
Staff Sports Writer

When a college loses three All-American football players it's in trouble, right? Wrong! Not if the team happens to be Michigan.

The traditionally-tough Wolverines have lost Associated Press All-Americans Rob Lytle, Jim Smith and Calvin O'Neal to the pros but that doesn't darken hopes for another superb season under Master Bo Schembechler. "I know we're going to have another good team, but right now it's hard to tell how good it'll be," stated Bo, attending the annual Benton Harbor-St. Joseph U-M Alumni Association golf outing Friday at the Point O' Woods Golf and Country Club. "But we had a very good spring practice and I'm always optimistic."

The return of nine starters on offense should make up for the departure of Lytle, Michigan's all-time rushing leader, and wingback Smith, who was quarterback Rick Leach's prime target.

"We lost half our offense in Lytle and Smith, you just don't replace those kind of people too easily," noted Bo. "But we go return our whole interior line...that should be one of our big strengths."

The line should again cut giant holes for Michigan's fast-stepping backs. Returning are tackle Bill Dufek (6-4, 250), center Walt Downing (6-4, 254) and guard Mark Donahue (6-3, 245), all unanimous All-Big Ten selections last year. Also back are tackle Mike Kenn (6-4½, 245) and guard Jerry Szara (6-1, 243) along with Gene Johnson (6-3, 223) and Mark Schmege (6-3, 230), who have shared the starting tight end spot the last two years. Curt Stephenson and Rick White return as the top two split ends.

Junior Leach, an All-Big Ten pick, returns for his third year of starting at quarterback. Harlan Huckleby and Russell

Davis are returning backfield performers. Huckleby rushed for 912 yards with a 5.9 average last year and Davis for 596 yards at 5.7 as the Wolverines led the nation in total offense, rushing offense and scoring last season.

"Leach really looked good during the spring," offered Bo. "I would say if he improves this fall as much as he did from his freshman to his sophomore year he will really be something special."

"If we played right now I would start Davis and Huckleby in the backfield. But Kevin King looked real good in the spring at fullback."

Bo expressed some concern at filling some key spots on the defense, which lost seven starters including linebacker O'Neal who led the team in tackles. Top returnees are linebackers John Anderson (6-3, 214), also a standout punter, Dom Tedesco (6-4, 206), and Jerry Meter (6-3, 206) along with middle guard Steve Graves (6-1, 223), halfback Jim Pickens and safety Dwight Hicks.

Also coming in this fall are another group of top-notch recruits.

"I'd say we had a good recruiting year," said Bo. "We got a lot of big, tall linemen. I'd say the kid with the biggest chance of stepping right in is Rodney Feaster out of Flint Southwestern. He could be the deep threat we need with speed at wide receiver."

Bo, becoming a legend in his own time at Ann Arbor, again sees Ohio State as being the Wolverines' main challenger for the Big Ten crown.

"OSU will be good again. But the four teams we play on the road — Illinois, Michigan State, Minnesota and Purdue — will also be good."

Bo and his pupil, former U-M assistant coach Gary Moeller who took over at Illinois, will have an early confrontation as the two hook up to open the season Sept. 10 at Champaign.

"He (Moeller) should know a little about us...he's scouted us for the last 10 years and gone over the playbooks," laughed Bo.

Under Bo the Wolverines have won or shared six Big Ten championships in eight years and finished among the Top Ten teams in the nation every year. Last season Michigan shared the crown with the Buckeyes and ended with a 10-2 record and No. 3 rating in the final poll.

"Right now our goals are to win another Big Ten title and go on out to the Rose Bowl again," added Bo.

Michigan, which set an NCAA attendance record last year by averaging 103,150 fans a game, has already announced games this season with Texas A&M and Ohio State have been sold out on an individual ticket basis. The Wolverines will make an appearance in South Bend to take on Notre Dame next year as the schools renew their series.

TIGER SLIPUPS COSTLY

'Bird' Clipped In Debut

DETROIT (AP) — He still talks to the ball, stalks the mound, twists and turns like a nervous gyroscope.

Mark "The Bird" Fidrych still pitched like the guy who won 19 games last season and became the American League Rookie of the Year.

There were plenty of "Bird" banners and the 44,207 boisterous fans at Tiger Stadium resumed their old "Go, Bird, Go" chants. But the Seattle Mariners slipped Glenn Abbott and Mike Kekich into the script Friday night to ruin Fidrych's 1977 debut.

The Detroit Tigers, meanwhile, added some slipups and let Seattle slip away with a 2-1 victory in the teams' first meeting ever.

"I'm just thankful to The Man (God) for letting me be out there," said Fidrych, who seemed unaffected by the March 31 surgery that removed cartilage from his left knee. He came off the injured list Tuesday.

The Bird went the distance, spacing eight hits. But fielding miscues by Ron LeFlore and Tito Fuentes spelled his downfall.

Abbott and Kekich combined to pitch a three-hitter. It was the third straight game in which Detroit had just three hits. The other two were against super-pitchers Nolan Ryan and Frank Tanana of California.

"We didn't hit him, so I guess he was as good as he looked," said Tiger Manager Ralph Houk of Abbott, who lifted his record to 2-4.

"When you see a Ryan or a Tanana you can see what's happening. Tonight you couldn't really see it, but I guess the pitches were doing the same job."

Abbott, who pitched 7½ innings for what Manager Darrell Johnson called his fifth "good outing in a row," said, "I was really pumped up. I knew I was gonna beat him (Fidrych) if we got some runs."

A downcast Fidrych, who had his father and two sisters in the stands, said: "I'm going home and beat up my pillow."

The 22-year-old right-hander, in his typical contradictory way, said, "I probably fought as hard as I could, but I probably should have fought harder."

Detroit's first hit was a two-out home run by 152 hitter Tom Verzer in the third inning.

Seattle tied it in the fifth on a sacrifice fly by Dave Collins after Bob Skilton's single and a scratch double by Larry Milbourne. Centerfielder LeFlore made an over-the-shoulder catch of the Milbourne drive, but the ball bounced out of his glove.

An error by second baseman Fuentes allowed the Mariners to score the winning run in the sixth. Ex-Tiger Dan Meyer doubled with two outs and Bill Stein, originally from Battle Creek, Mich., followed with a grounder that bounced off Fuentes' glove and into right field.

Last year Tiger second baseman Pedro Garcia made several key errors in close games Fidrych pitched, including a 1-0 loss. Ironically, Fuentes made several fine plays earlier Friday.

In other American League games Friday, Cleveland defeated Oakland 3-1, California topped Toronto 4-1, Baltimore blanked Minnesota 6-0, Boston clobbered Kansas City 10-1, New York outlasted Chicago 8-6 and Milwaukee edged Texas 6-5.

A four-hitter by Wayne Garland, 2-5, gave Cleveland its fifth straight victory. The right-hander retired the first 13 batters before Wayne Gross singled in the fifth. Oakland then combined two hits in the sixth for its lone run.

Cleveland scored in the second inning on Bruce Bochte's walk and Rico Carty's double. After Buddy Bell singled, Carty scored on a double play.

Consecutive home runs by Carlton Fisk and George Scott powered Boston to its easy victory over Kansas City. It was the fifth time this season that the Red Sox, who lead the American League with 54 homers, have hit two in a row.

Ferguson Jenkins, 5-4, got the victory, while Kansas City's Hal McRae spoiled his shutout bid with a two-out homer in the eighth.

A towering home run Reggie Jackson and four hits by Mickey Rivers helped lead New York over Chicago. Thurman Munson drove in three runs with a double, triple and sacrifice fly for the Yankees, who had to overcome an early 5-0 deficit.

A two-run homer by Oscar Gamble, Jim Essian's two-run single and a sacrifice fly by Richie Zisk, who also homered in the game, knocked out New York starter Catfish Hunter. But Jackson's 450-foot homer started a five-run Yankee inning.

Gary Ross and Paul Hartzell combined for a six-hitter as California handed Toronto its fourth straight loss. The Angels scored three runs on only one hit in the seventh as the Blue Jays committed four errors in the game.

Ross, 2-2, struggled in the first two innings before retiring 12 straight batters until Otto Velez singled in the seventh. Hartzell came on in the eighth to finish up.

Rudy May scattered six hits while Lee May and Ken Singleton drove in two runs apiece as Baltimore blanked Minnesota.

May singled in the Orioles' two-run first inning and his bases-loaded single in the second gave Baltimore a 4-0 lead.

Baltimore has now won seven of its last nine games.

May, 6-4, allowed two hits by Roy Smalley through the first four innings. The veteran left-hander fanned seven while halting Minnesota's winning streak at three.

Steve Brye's sacrifice fly in the bottom of the ninth scored Sal Bando to give Milwaukee its victory over Texas. Bando and Cecil Cooper had singled with one out to set up Brye's game-winning fly ball.

Texas had tied the score in the top of the inning on Jim Fregosi's sacrifice fly after the Rangers had filled the bases with none out.

Seaver Can't Beat Tommy Hutton Hex

Cubs Half Game Out Of First

From ASSOCIATED PRESS

Tommy Hutton can't explain it, he can only enjoy it.

Tom Seaver can't explain it, either — but he obviously can't enjoy it.

"It's Hutton's uncanny hitting hex against Seaver."

"Gee, if I could hit other guys like that I wouldn't be figuring out what to do during the All-Star break," said the Philadelphia Phillies' utilityman after belting around the New York Met again Friday night.

Hutton, a .248 lifetime hitter who is batting just .177 so far this season, slugged a home run and single off Seaver for three of his four RBIs to lead the Phillies to a 5-4 triumph.

The performance improved his lifetime mark against one of baseball's best pitchers in .432 — 16 hits in 37 at-bats. Hutton has hit three home runs and boasts 14 RBIs against Seaver in his limited appearances.

The Phillies scored the winning run in the eighth. Mike Schmidt doubled and pinch-runner Terry Harmon took third on an infield out and scored on Hutton's sacrifice fly off reliever Skip Lockwood.

Elsewhere in the National League, the Los Angeles Dodgers routed the Cincinnati Reds 10-3; the Houston Astros routed the San Diego Padres 4-3; the St. Louis Cardinals defeated the Montreal Expos 7-3; the Chicago Cubs trimmed the Pittsburgh Pirates 4-2 and the San Francisco Giants edged the Atlanta Braves 4-3 in 10 innings.

Steve Garvey and Dusty Baker blasted home runs as Los Angeles defeated Cincinnati. With the help of the two homers in the third inning, the Dodgers jumped to a 5-0 lead against loser Pat Zachry.

The Reds came back with a run in the fourth on George Foster's seventh homer and two unearned runs in the fifth, but the Dodgers added five more runs in the eighth to put the game out of reach.

Tim Lincecum blooped a two-out, run-scoring single in the 10th inning to lift San Francisco over Atlanta. Foli, who earlier cracked a two-run triple, scored Larry Herndon from second base as the surging Giants won their fifth straight game.

Herndon was hit by a Buzz Capra pitch with two down in the bottom of the 10th and stole second. After Gary Thomsen was walked intentionally, Foli delivered his game-winning blow off Capra. Charlie Williams was the winner.

Joe Ferguson's two-out double in the seventh inning scored Jose Cruz from second to snap a 3-3 tie and give Houston its victory over San Diego. Ferguson's decisive hit, a liner down the left field line, came off Padres relief ace Rolfe Fingers, who had just relieved starter Rick Sawyer.

After retiring the first two batters in the seventh, Sawyer gave up a double to Cruz to start the rally. He then intentionally walked Cliff Johnson before Fingers came in.

Ken Reitz hit the first grand slam homer of his major league career to cap a six-run rally in the fourth inning and send St. Louis over Montreal.

Home runs by Manny Trillo and Bobby Murcer backed the sharp pitching of Bill Bonham and powered Chicago over Pittsburgh. The triumph was the 19th in 24 games for the hot Cubs, who moved within one-half game of the first place Pirates in the National League East.

Trillo's homer, his fourth, capped a two-run fourth inning. Murcer hit his seventh of the season in the sixth to break a 2-2 tie and hand John Candelaria his first loss of the year after six victories.

Bonham allowed but five hits in eight innings before giving way to reliever Bruce Sutter in the ninth.

Knotts Captures Hartford Feature

HARTFORD — Rick Knotts of Paw Paw captured the feature for late-model super stocks here Friday night at the Hartford Motor Speedway.

Bob Senneker of Dorr was second followed by Ray Young. Senneker took the pursuit race with Randy Sweet second. Sweet won the dash followed by Ed Howe.

Heat victories went to Terry Senneker, Knotts and Howe. Howe also had the fastest qualifying time for the evening at 19.66.

Racing continues next Friday with a show for the late models. Time trials are at 7:30 p.m. with the first race set for 8:30.

Gasoline Alley Deceiving As Indy 500 Nears

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — Walk through Gasoline Alley the day before the annual Indianapolis 500-mile automobile extravaganza and the air feels a little heavier.

The activity at the Indianapolis Motor Speedway appears less frenzied than at any time during the two critical weeks leading up to the world's richest race, but don't you believe it. Inside the old side-by-side wooden garages, the action is frenetic and the nerves are frayed. It's time for the last-minute engine that can mean the difference between the checkered victory flag and the adulation of millions of race fans and a sudden and very unsettling meeting with a concrete wall at 200 miles an hour.

The failure of a two-bit part has cost at least one driver—Joe Leonard—a triumph that might have made him wealthy and famous—not a guaranteed payoff, but one that has been enjoyed by more than one Indy victor.

When the 33 glamorous and glistening championship cars take the parade lap before Sunday's 61st running of the Memorial Day Classic, it will be a tossup who will feel the trepidation more, the driver taking life in hand in the form of a steering wheel or the mechanic who has put the powerful machines together over and over while seeking perfection.

A crowd conservatively estimated at 350,000 will be on hand for the colorful spectacle.

The 2.5-mile oval track surrounds a sprawling infield area where the race-day inhabitants, who cough up $7 for a general admission ticket, generally are more interested in eating chicken, drinking beer, sleeping in the sun and watching scantily clad members of the opposite sex wander aimlessly throughout the long race day.

Most of the spectators arrive early, spending as much as several hours fighting the traffic to get in only to find the same jam-up awaiting their tired and often overheated departure some time in the late afternoon.

Most Indy veterans say to scoffers, "Everybody should see this race once."

But, strangely, many who come to this celebration of speed and danger find they are drawn back year after year.

Girls Softball Leagues

SUNSHINE—Holly Olin and Marcia Markowski had three hits each as the Rosalind edged the Chargers 16-15. Chris Posenback homered twice for the losers. The Pirates edged the Spinners 14-13 with Erin Mohrer, Lisa DeMorrow and Kim Brown pacing a six-run fourth. Monica Smith and Shelly Lynch had three hits each with Smith hitting a homer. The Jaguars scored 11 runs in the fifth to notch a 26-1 win over the Flitties. Debbie Dubeck tripped to drive in two runs. Karl Pickens homered twice and Freda Kuesper stroked four hits for the losers. Julie Krut, Laura Seringer and Chris Decker all slugged four hits as the Spinners turned back the Pirates 20-10. Tami Ford and Jeanette Peterek led the Pirates, who got a homer from Leslie Lynch. Kristi Steinke made a sparkling catch.

King Coach Also Quits

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The management turnover on the Los Angeles Kings continued Friday night with the second resignation in two days as Bob Pulford stepped down as the National Hockey League team's coach.

No successor was named for Pulford, who led the Kings to the Stanley Cup playoffs following each of the past four seasons. Los Angeles had a 178-190-68 record under Pulford during his five years as the team's coach.

On Thursday night, Jake Milford resigned as the Kings' general manager. He was replaced by George Maguire.

Pulford, 41, led the Kings to a 34-31 record during the recently completed season.

Track Stars Should Rip Up Rotary Records Tuesday

Southwestern Michigan's track and field stars will undoubtedly rip up the record book again next Tuesday in the 20th annual Twin City Rotary Track Meet at St. Joseph high school.

Probably the finest field ever is awaiting the meet which finally brings together on one field all of the standouts on the Herald-Palladium's track and field honor roll.

Action starts with field events and running preliminaries at 4 p.m. The running finals follow at 7 p.m.

Boys Rotary records have been bettered or matched in six of 16 events this season, while girls marks have been topped or tied in 12 of 14 events.

Fans will see southwestern Michigan's best ever in the boys 100-yard dash and 440 relay, but that's nothing compared to the girls field, which will have the all-time record holders in 10 events.

Lakeshore's Tom Jager and Berrien Springs' Arden Paustian will be back to defend their Rotary records in the 120 high hurdles (14.8) and 440 dash (49.8), respectively, but they face some keen competition.

Jager and South Haven's Mike Jones have 14.5 clockings this year which stands No. 2 all-time, and Niles' Mike Larrabee is just a step behind at 14.6 (No. 4 all-time).

Paustian has been bothered by an injury this season and has a top effort of 30.4 seconds, a bit slower than his Rotary mark of 29.8. But Benton Harbor's Ricky McDonald and St. Joseph's Tim Mance have both been under the record this spring at 29.3 and 29.5, respectively, times which stand No. 2 and 3 all-time.

Benton Harbor's Carmella Hull stands out among the girls with three Rotary records....shot put (39.7), 100-yard dash (11.2) and 220-yard dash (24.9).

Others back to defend their Rotary records will be Benton Harbor's Chris Jones in the long jump (17-5 1/2), Lakeshore's Janet Root in the 880 run (2:25.2), Coloma's Cindy Culver in the 440 dash (1:00.8) and Buchanan's Susan Trull in the two-mile run (12:23.2).

Hull is again the top area shot putter this season at 41-10 1/4, with River Valley's Deb Lundin close behind at 40-10 1/4.

In the sprints, Hull hasn't been quite as successful because of a knee problem. The fastest so far this year has been Lakeshore's Rhonda Edwards at 11.2 in the 100 and 26.0 in the 220.

Jones and Root remain the best this spring in the long jump and 880, but Culver and Trull could be dethroned.

Culver has a 1:00.6 best this season, but just this week Berrien Springs' Laurie Schoen became the first area girl in history to go under one minute at 59.7. And Lake Michigan Catholic's Darlene Wallace had a 1:00.0 in the same race.

River Valley's Sheila Varga matched that effort this week by being the first girl under 12 minutes in the two-mile at 11:50.8. Decatur's Kathy Seibel and Hartford's Lisa Luckner have also been under the Rotary record at 12:00.0 and 12:13.0, respectively.

Hull, Schoen, Root, Varga and Jones also hold the all-time southwestern Michigan record in their specialties.

Lundin also has the area discus record at 118 1/4 and should break the 108-11 Rotary record.

The girls will also be represented by the all-time best in the high jump — Watervliet's Amy Borrelli and Lakeshore's Marlene Peltys at 5-6 — and the 440 relay — Benton Harbor's 50.3 clocking — and they could easily break the Rotary records of 5-4 and 51.6, respectively.

Girls Rotary records in the 880 relay (1:47.9), 110 low hurdles (15.4) and mile run (5:35.1) are also threatened. Benton Harbor has gone 1:46.3 in the 880 relay, St. Joseph's Michelle Prierer has a 15.3 in the lows and three have been under the mile mark — St. Joseph's Nan McLelland (5:29.7), Decatur's Seibel (5:30.7) and Paw Paw's Amy Firestone (5:33.5).

Rotary boys records being challenged, besides the high hurdles and 440 dash, are the 100-yard dash, discus, long jump and 440 relay.

The century mark of 10 seconds flat is being challenged by Benton Harbor's Maverick Burton (9.6 and No. 1 all-time), New Buffalo's Mark D'Amato (9.8 and No. 5 all-time) and South Haven's Shelby Gamble (9.9).

All five of the honor roll discus throwers have done better than the 133-11 record, with Berrien Springs' Jack Lewis tops at 143-3 (No. 1 all-time).

Jager had also matched the long jump record of 22-5 1/2 and Benton Harbor has gone under the 440 relay record of 44.2 with a 43.3, which is also No. 1 all-time. Jager's long jump is No. 3 all-time.

Others on the all-time honor roll in action will include Lakeshore high jumper Kerry Myers (6-7), Niles high jumper Tim Garner (6-6 1/4), Niles' mile relay team (3:23.7) and Benton Harbor's 880 relay squad (1:30.6).

Tuesday's meet, which will be dedicated to former Benton Harbor coach Bob Hynd, is expected to have more than 400 participants, including two who will be picked for one-year $1,000 college scholarships by the Twin City Rotary Club.

McGinnis, Lucas Matchup A Bust

PORTLAND (AP) — George McGinnis of Philadelphia against Maurice Lucas of Portland—the two premier power forwards in the game, the reigning king against the brash, young pretender to his throne, going head-to-head with the National Basketball Association championship on the line.

It figured to be the kind of matchup basketball dreams are made of. Instead, it has been the biggest bust of the playoff finals.

Neither has lived up to his reputation in the first two games of the best-of-seven playoff series, won by Philadelphia 107-101 and 107-89. Game Three will be played here Sunday.

Before the series started,

Smith Staying With Buffalo

BUFFALO (AP) — Guard Randy Smith, a five-year veteran who led the Buffalo Braves in scoring with a 20.7 points average last season, has signed a new two-year contract, dispelling fears that he would jump to another National Basketball Association team.

Philadelphia assistant coach Jack McMahon savored the prospect of the McGinnis-Lucas matchup.

"George has had the name, the big rep, for the last few years," said McMahon. "Now you're starting to hear talk that Lucas is the best power forward in the game. It's like when you're the top gun and then they say you're slowing down and there's somebody quicker on the draw. I think George will really respond to the challenge."

It hasn't happened. McGinnis, coming off a groin injury, is trying to shake perhaps the deepest slump of his brilliant pro career. It is a tribute to his talented teammates that the Sixers have been able to win, while getting painfully little production from McGinnis.

McGinnis, who has totaled just 20 points and 13 rebounds for the two games.

McGinnis showed signs of finally breaking out of his slump Thursday night, particularly in one stretch of the second quarter when the Sixers ran off three baskets, McGinnis scoring two of them and assisting on the third.

Despite 14 points and 10 rebounds, Lucas, who developed so rapidly during the regular season to the point where he can now look McGinnis eye-to-eye atop the power forward plateau, is the type of player who can dominate a game, scoring 40 points or grabbing 20 rebounds.

But he caught a cold during the nine-day layoff prior to the start of the series and it sapped his strength. His inability to break loose is a major reason the Blazers are two games down and with their backs to the wall.

"I am one of the leading scorers and rebounders on this team," said Lucas. "I have got to contribute more if we are going to win."

Just as Lucas has been sub-par, Portland Coach Jack Ramsay says Portland's entire offense has been in the doldrums.

Some credit, however, must go to Philadelphia's defensive play.

And so far, Portland's perimeter shooting has not been enough to beat the Sixers. The Blazers shot a dismal 35.6 per cent Thursday night in one of their worst performances in a long time.

It was such a dismal effort that Ramsay gathered his troops following the seven-hour plane trip from Philadelphia Friday and ran them through a practice session.

Lawrence, Bees Qualify For 'D' Baseball District

Strong relief pitching helped Lawrence and Bridgman gain Class D pre-district baseball victories Friday.

Lawrence topped Michigan Lutheran 6-3 and Bridgman got by Schoolcraft 6-4. The Tigers will meet the Bees at 12:30 p.m. next Saturday in the Class D district at Lawrence. Gobles faces the winner of today's Lawton-Galien clash in the first game at 10 a.m. The championship tilt is set for 3:30 p.m.

Lawrence, which won the district last season, rallied for three runs in the fifth inning to take the win. But the Tigers might not have been close enough had it not been for the relief work of Ed Glista. Glista entered the game in the second inning when starter Jim Mason came up with a sore arm.

In the final five-and-one-third innings, Glista gave up just one run to pick up the victory.

Bill Beeching and Mason started the fifth inning uprising with singles. Lutheran then added fire to the comeback with three errors, helping the Tigers to the three runs.

Sophomore Jim McLemore collected two hits for Lawrence and is now hitting .406.

Bill Moreland needed relief help from Joe Jones to pick up the Bridgman victory. Jones worked the final two-and-two-thirds innings.

Tom Meredith was the big gun for the Bees, slamming a pair of doubles and a pair of singles and driving in two runs. Moreland belted a home run and a single for the Bees, now 8-11.

WMU 2nd In Track

BLOOMINGTON, Ind. (AP) — Penn State takes a 28-point lead into today's final events in the Central Collegiate Conference track and field championships at Indiana University, thanks to two firsts logged Friday by Bruce Baden and Paul Stenmer.

Radden and Stenmer, a pair of long distance runners, won the 3,000-meter steeplechase and the 10,000-meter run, respectively, to give the Nittany Lions 34 points.

Western Michigan was a distance second with 25, followed by Southern Illinois with 23.

Three Share Atlanta Lead

ATLANTA (AP) — There were some complaints about bumpy greens, but Bob Dickson never noticed.

Neither did Dave Stockton.

Dickson, an Oklahoman who hasn't claimed victory on the PGA tour since 1973, birdied six of the first seven holes en route to a course record-tying front side of 30 and finished with a seven-under-par 65 to surge into contention Friday in the $200,000 Atlanta Classic Golf Tournament.

Stockton, a two-time PGA champion, overcame an errant driver by using only 24 putts in the round — one less than Dickson — as he fired a 69 and shared the halfway lead with former U.S. Open champ Lou Graham and Mac McLendon at 137 — seven under on the hilly, 6,883-yard Atlanta Country Club course.

McLendon matched Stockton's 69 and Graham had a 71, after finishing the storm-delayed opening round earlier in the day for a leading 66.

Australian David Graham and Jim Dent each had 70s for 138, lodged in the runner-up slot, while Dickson was alone at 139.

Several players mentioned that the greens, softened by showers during both rounds, became quite bumpy in the afternoon because of so much traffic on them.

"The greens were smooth wherever my ball was," Dickson said. He birdied the first three holes from 20, 6 and 10 feet, parted the next and then strung together birdies with putts of 10, 25 and 25 feet. He rimmed out an 18-footer at 10 where he took his only bogey, rimmed a birdie possibility from 25 feet at 12, got one from 15 feet at 15 and again on 18 from only one foot.

Stockton also knocked in some long ones — from 20 feet on one, 25 feet on seven and 30 feet on nine, making up for a horrid day off the tees.

Six players were grouped at 140, three shots back. They were Lanny Wadkins 68, Roger Maltbie 67, Alan Taple 70, Bill Rogers 67, defending champion Hale Irwin 70 and Steve Veriato 70.

Jack Nicklaus struggled in with a 73-143, taking a double bogey 6 on the 14th and closing with a bogey 6 at 18 where he knocked a shot into the lake guarding the green.

CMU Registers Opening Victory

MINNEAPOLIS (AP) — Minnesota and Central Michigan survived first-round challenges in the NCAA Midwest Regional baseball playoffs Friday.

Minnesota bombed Florida 7-0 as Jerry Ujdur threw a five-hitter and Tom Mee connected for four hits, while Mike Schervish's solo home run lifted Central Michigan to a 2-1 victory over Virginia Tech.

Minnesota met Central Michigan and Florida took on Virginia Tech today in the double-elimination tournament.

In the Minnesota-Florida game, Ujdur, 11-2, gave up his first hit in the fourth inning, a single to Roger Holt. Only one Florida runner got past second base in the game.

"We were embarrassed, the worst game we've ever played," said Florida Coach Jay Bergman. "I've never seen a more lackadaisical effort. We looked like a bunch of high school players. But Minnesota showed they had a fine club and they made all the plays."

Mee had a homer, a double and two singles to drive in two runs. Paul Molitor and Jeff Neutzhilf also batted in two runs apiece.

Minnesota took a 2-0 lead in the third inning, exploded for four runs in the seventh and added another in the eighth.

"That's about as well as you can play," said Minnesota Coach Dick Siebert, whose Gophers had total of 14 hits.

John Cortese had two of Florida's five hits. Losing pitcher Ross Baumgarten, 8-5, considered to be the ace of the Gator pitching staff, was touched for 10 hits and five earned runs before being relieved in the seventh inning.

Central Michigan, the Mid-America Conference champion, broke Virginia Tech's 31-game winning streak.

Schervish's homer, his fifth of the season, gave Central Michigan a 2-0 lead. Virginia Tech scored its run in the ninth inning on Wayne Shelton's 10th home run of the year.

Kevin Flannery, 8-3, went the distance for Central, 44-12, allowing just four hits.

Gobbler ace Duke Dickerson, 10-2, suffered the loss.

Stockman Sends First Newsletter

By MIKE WYNGARDEN Staff Writer

Congressman Dave Stockman (R-St. Joseph) has sent his first newsletter to Fourth District constituents detailing issues before the U.S. House of Representatives and his views on bills before Congress.

The four-page newsletter, printed and mailed at government expense, was sent to 186,786 postal patrons in the district, according to Bob Murphy, Stockman's press secretary in Washington, and cost $1,600 to print.

Money for the printing, Murphy said, came out of a $5,000 office budget for constituent communication given to all congressmen. The $1,600 cost for the newsletter does not include postage, he said, because congressman are given franking privileges and do not have to pay postage costs.

In an effort to limit campaigning through constituent newsletters, both the House and Senate have passed ethics bills which place some regulations on the newsletters, Murphy said.

Some of the regulations, according to Murphy, include not being allowed to mention the name of the congressman more than eight times on any one page, restrictions on the size and number of photographs, and not being allowed to distribute a newsletter less than 90 days before an election.

There are four pictures of Stockman in his newsletter.

Murphy said Stockman plans to send out one other newsletter this year and probably two or three each following year of his term.

'Double Dipping' Is Under Attack

By JEFFREY MILLS Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Future retired military personnel won't be able to collect on their pensions while holding down civilian government jobs if a House subcommittee has its way.

Friday's action by a House appropriations panel may be the opening of the strongest attack yet on "double dipping," the practice of military pensioners also taking home civilian government paychecks.

The practice has come under increasing attack in recent years. President Carter has said he opposes it.

The subcommittee approved a bill excluding the 141,000 military retirees now on the civilian government payroll, but those getting federal jobs after Oct. 1 would have to renounce their retirement pay for as long as they worked for Uncle Sam.

"It's a matter of principle," Rep. George H. Mahon, D-Tex., the panel chairman, said. "People who make good pensions should not also get good government jobs when there are many unemployed people."

The provision is part of a $11.2 billion defense appropriation bill, which is $2.7

billion below President Carter's request.

About half of the military personnel who can retire after 20 years of service with full pensions are in their late 30s or early 40s. Under most private pension plans, employees must reach a certain age — often 62 — before receiving a pension that is frequently less than what a retired military person gets.

Defenders of the present system say that if a retired member of the armed services is the best qualified person for a government job, he should get it without sacrificing any of his retirement benefits.

The subcommittee plan would save the government an estimated $26 million in the first year after it took effect.

3,500 IDEAS TO PONDER WASHINGTON (AP) — Some 800 delegates wound up a five-day White House conference on the handicapped with 3,500 suggestions to ponder.

Navy Women May Get Sea Duty

By LARRY MARGASAK
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — Navy women are a few nautical miles closer to becoming seaborne following a White House decision to allow them on board ships in peacetime.

Navy Secretary W. Graham Clayton Jr. said Friday that the Pentagon and the Office of Management and Budget have approved sea duty for women.

The proposal now goes to Congress, because the law currently bars women sailors from all naval vessels except hospital ships and transports. In effect, Navy women have been landlocked since 1973, when the last hospital ship was retired.

Ironically, Clayton commented the same day that First Lady Rosalynn Carter helped steer the nuclear submarine Los Angeles.

If Congress approves, the Navy would assign women to auxiliary ships on a permanent basis and combat vessels on a temporary basis, Clayton said.

"I think that (current law) is silly," Clayton told a Norfolk, Va., news conference. "It's left over from another time."

The Navy began work on the proposal after six enlisted women and officers filed suit claiming the current restrictions infringe on their constitutional rights.

Despite the legal action, a former high-ranking Navy woman predicts most American women would not rush to sea.

"It seems to me most unlikely that the comfort - convenience - glamour - oriented young American woman would view such a life as her golden opportunity," retired Capt. Robin L. Quigley wrote recently in the Navy League's publication, "Seapower."

Yet, the principle of equality requires that Navy women, like men, should be ordered to sea rather than have a choice, she said.

Capt. Quigley, who was chief of naval personnel for women from 1971-73, predicted that of those Navy women now serving, "only minuscule numbers ... would be prepared to accept continued service under such conditions."

Clayton also said Friday there is a "strong possibility" that bell-bottom trousers and jumpers will return to the Navy uniform. Clayton said the change would be phased in over several years. He said there was a substantial desire for the old uniform — a statement confirmed by an official but non-scientific Navy poll.

The new uniform became mandatory nearly two years ago.

A sampling of opinion among more than 8,300 sailors resulted in an 86 per cent tally for restoring the old uniform.

Adm. James Holloway, chief of naval operations, reportedly is considering use of the old uniforms for the five lowest enlisted ranks. That would leave senior petty officers with the coat-and-tie uniform, which once distinguished them from the lower ranking sailors.

Congress Must Repeal Law Barring Females

Clayton said the change would be phased in over several years. He said there was a substantial desire for the old uniform — a statement confirmed by an official but non-scientific Navy poll.

Hospital, 2 Women Honored

Two local women and St. Joseph Memorial hospital have been recognized by the American Diabetes Association — Michigan Affiliate for being instrumental in establishing and maintaining an association program locally.

Receiving the awards were Mrs. Barbara Stoub of Stevensville and Mrs. Sharon Finch, of St. Joseph, registered nurse at Memorial.

The diabetes association provides programs and services such as diabetes research, education, detection and Camp Midicha, a special medically supervised summer camp for diabetic children through local volunteer units. Poet Passes Trolley Test

DETROIT (AP) — Clang, clang, clang went the trolley — and 28-year-old Elizabeth Boyce realized one of her lifetime ambitions. The pigtailed poet-painter passed her tests this week to become the first woman to run one of the cars on Detroit's abbreviated trolley line. The line, constructed last year as a downtown attraction, stretches about a mile from the city's riverfront to Grand Circus Park. It features bouncy old red trolley cars, purchased by the city from Lisbon, Portugal. Ms. Boyce, who prefers that designation, said Friday the cars were what first caught her eye. A bus driver for the city's Department of Transportation for the past four years, she said she fell in love with the trolley line.

Chamber Launches Youth Job Listings

Twin Cities Area Chamber of Commerce is launching its summer youth employment program by asking area employers to describe jobs that may be available for young people this summer. Roger Curry, executive vice president of the Chamber of Commerce, said the employment program has three classifications.

1. Full-time non farm employment in the private sector for youths between the ages of 16 and 21.
2. Work for area fruit growers and farmers.
3. Domestic help or "Rent-A-Youth" program for those between 14 and 21 for jobs on a day-to-day basis. This work includes baby sitting, lawn care, cleaning, typing and other chores.

Application forms have been sent to known prospective employers. Anyone else desiring help may contact Wayne Ransbottom at the Chamber of Commerce, 777 Riverview drive, Benton Harbor. Administrative costs of the program are paid under the federal Comprehensive Employment Training act. Wages are paid by the private employer.

The farm work program is being reinstituted this year after being suspended in 1976 because the administrative costs were not funded. In 1975, growers employed some 1,300 youths in the program. This is the 10th year for summer youth employment in the Twin Cities area. During its earlier years, it was a cooperative effort of Area Resources Improvement Council, Michigan Employment Security Commission, and the Chamber of Commerce.

Man Found Guilty Of Break-In

A Berrien Circuit court jury deliberated 45 minutes yesterday before convicting a Benton Harbor man of breaking into a gas station last February.

Jurors in Judge Chester J. Byrns court returned the guilty verdict against Malory F. Hill, 20, of 321 Brunson avenue. Following the verdict, Byrns revoked Hill's bond privilege and remanded him to jail to await a sentence of up to 10 years in prison.

Hill was charged with breaking and entering the Phillips 66 station, at 310 East Main street, Benton Harbor, on Feb. 5. Opposing counsel in the 1½ day trial were Assistant Prosecutor Paul Maloney and St. Joseph Atty. Donald Bleich.

BH School Bias Trial Delayed

GRAND RAPIDS — The starting date for the trial in the Benton Harbor schools desegregation suit has been rescheduled to June 20 because several of the attorneys involved in the suit are also involved in the Detroit desegregation suit which begins next week, according to a law clerk in federal district court here.

John McKay, clerk for Judge Noel Fox, said two attorneys for the NAACP, plaintiffs in the Benton Harbor suit, and an attorney for the State of Michigan, defendant in the Benton Harbor suit, are also involved in the desegregation case in federal district court in Detroit.

The start of the trial in the 10-year-old Benton Harbor schools desegregation suit had been scheduled by Judge Fox for Tuesday. The NAACP originally filed the suit in 1967 on behalf of Mrs. Ruth Berry and her six children and other black parents and children of the Benton Harbor school district.

The trial will be held in Kalamazoo.

Helen Ford Prosecution Nears Close

By SCOTT WILLIAMSON Staff Writer

The Berrien Circuit court trial for Mrs. Helen Ford was adjourned yesterday until next Tuesday, with the prosecution expected to call only two more witnesses.

Outside of court, defense Atty. Benjamin Logan II said he expects Mrs. Ford will take the stand on her own behalf sometime after the prosecution concludes its case. However, he said he also intends to make a motion for a directed verdict of "not guilty" when the prosecution finishes.

If Judge Zoe S. Burkholz, presiding over the trial, grants the motion, the trial would end at that point.

Mrs. Ford is being tried on a charge of obtaining $5,900 in back wages from Berrien County Action (BCA) under false pretenses while she was executive director.

Yesterday, Melvin Farmer testified he was instructed to sign a check for Mrs. Ford's back pay while serving as BCA treasurer on Jan. 22, 1976, the day after the BCA board met to consider the back pay request. He said he did not attend the entire meeting, and was not there when the issue came up.

But he said Mrs. Ford, BCA board chairman Nora Jefferson, and board member Charles Joseph told him he was directed by the board to issue the check for $3,657. The sum was the $5,900 in back pay, less withholdings for social security, federal, and state income taxes.

Farmer testified that he countersigned the check for $3,657, which was issued over the signature of Mrs. Jefferson.

The key issue in the trial is the back pay to Mrs. Ford from a winterization program operated by BCA. Funding for the program came from the federal Community Services Administration (CSA) to the state Bureau of Community Services (BCS), which then gave the money to BCA.

BCS officials previously testified CSA money could not be used for the back pay unless the federal government granted a waiver. They said Mrs. Ford did not receive such a waiver.

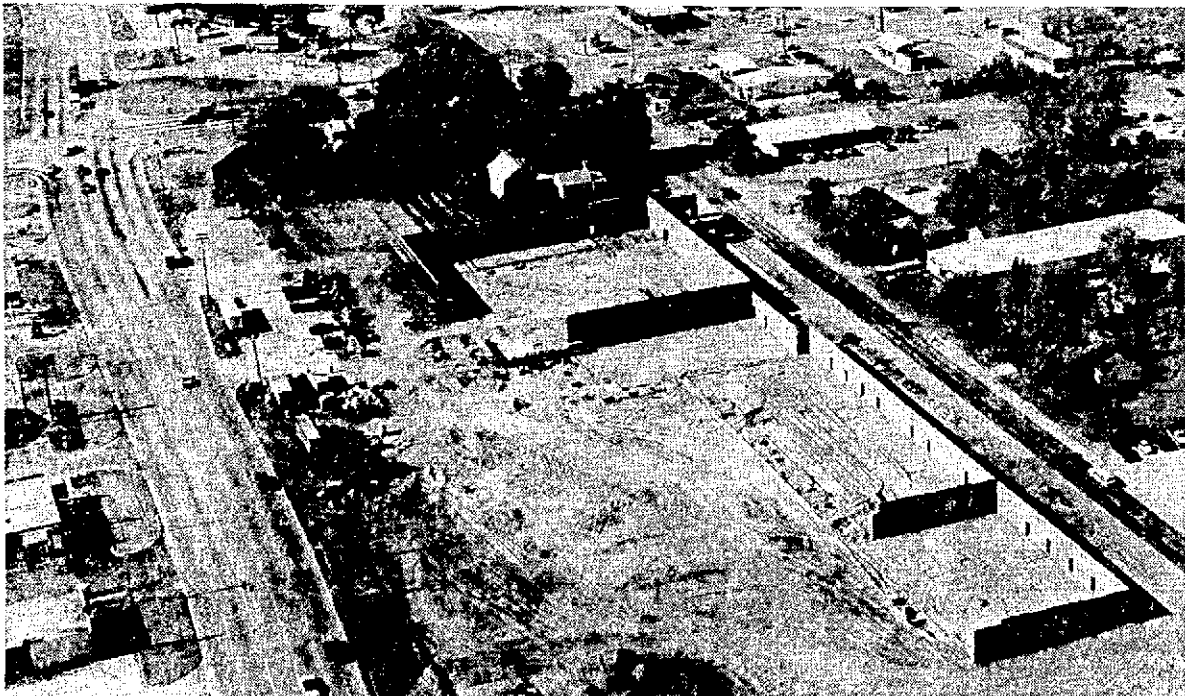

On Thursday, Al Benson, of BCS, testified that the federal Department of Commerce also contributed some $24,000 in "Title 10" funds to the winterization program. He testified he had erroneously advised BCA officials that the Title 10 money was not considered CSA money, and could therefore be used for Mrs. Ford's back pay.

But another BCS official, Vincent De Jong, testified the Title 10 funds were supposed to be used to provide new jobs to unemployed people. He also said the Title 10 money went to CSA, and was then forwarded to BCS and BCA, making the $24,000 CSA money.

Farmer testified that although Benson had advised him and some other board members that some of the winterization funds could be used for administration, "It was ever my feeling that it could be used for that purpose."

Farmer also said Mrs. Ford indicated to him that if the back pay was not proper, she would pay it back. He said the BCA board has not taken any official action asking that the money be paid back.

INVESTORS' GUIDE

Options Will Give Him Fast 'Action'

By SAM SHULSKY

Q. You are a hard guy to pin down. You evade a lot of questions by asking for more data. With that off my chest — I want to gamble with $1,500. I don't want to invest in A.T.&T. or bonds. I want to double or triple the money, or lose it — and I don't want to spend months in research.

A. Fair enough. I don't have to ask you for more data, because you've described your plans very clearly.

If you want maximum action from $1,500, take a look at the options market. For example, on the day your letter arrived, you could have bought an option, good until July, to acquire 100 IBM at $260 a share (it closed that day at 260½), at a cost of $875 plus commissions.

If IBM winds up your option period somewhere between 260 and 268½ you can recover a part of your $875. If it goes above 268½ you make $100 for each point. If IBM doesn't get above 260 during the option period you tear up your $875 ticket and walk away.

Is that fast enough for you?

Any brokerage firm with an active options department can get you enough "action" to make your head spin. And there are hundreds of "horses" to play — at all sorts of odds.

Q. How can interest rates be driven up by inflation?

A. If the purchasing power of the dollar loses 5, 6, 7, 8 per cent or more a year through inflation, you aren't likely to lend money out at only 5 or 6 per cent.

Q. I'm a widow living on Social Security plus dividends from shares of a company making construction products. I've been told I would improve my income if I sold the stock and bought some utility company preferred. My husband bought the construction company stock at two-thirds of its present price years ago.

A. You would improve your income materially if you switched to the utility preferred. Your present stock, highly rated, yields about 5.4 per cent. The utility preferred yields about 9 per cent. The reasons for the difference are obvious. Your present stock has gone up 50 per cent during the time you owned it; the utility preferred has gone down as interest rates rose. Your stock has increased its dividend from time to time; the utility preferred payment is fixed.

It boils down to this: do you want to take 5.4 per cent return on your money, plus hope of further capital gain? Or, do you want a 9 per cent "bird" in hand now? Either course makes good financial sense. So any decision you make, based on the actual improvement in dollars and cents income vs. the retention of a good quality growth stock, will be defensible.

Q. How long would $100,000 last if it was invested at 6 per cent and drawn down at the rate of $10,000 (10 per cent) a year?

A. Fifteen years.

Q. You wrote recently that if a reader took the cash value of a paid-up policy and put it into insured savings he could get more income and the money would be "almost" as safe. What do you mean "almost"?

A. I said that he would have almost as much insurance protection — the cash value being a bit less than the face value of the policy. I don't doubt the safety of savings insured by U.S. agencies or by certain states' sound insurance plans.

Henry Ford Wants Ban On Jap Cars

PARIS (AP) — Henry Ford II, in an interview with a French publication, says the U.S. auto industry will have to protect itself from foreign car imports and that labor unions will be calling for an embargo.

In the article in L'Equipe, a sports daily, the chairman of Ford Motor Co. said: "The program of (President) Carter will kill the Japanese (auto manufacturers). Labor unions will call for an embargo on imports."

Asked whether such an embargo could take place in a country as firmly attached to free trade as the United States, Ford said, "Yes, absolutely."

He noted that Italy has long opposed importation of Japanese cars, and that Britain reached agreement with Japanese manufacturers to limit their exports.

"A formula of this nature will have to be adopted by the U.S. if we want to prevent our auto industry from succumbing under the blows of the (U.S.) energy conservation program," Ford said.

Child Abuse Units Backed By Welfare

LANSING, Mich. (AP) — A proposed statewide system of local agencies fighting child abuse and neglect has won the endorsement of the Michigan Department of Social Services.

The department said this week that the proposed Child Abuse/Neglect Community Network would include representatives from existing agencies who would work in their own communities to stem the growing problem of child abuse.

Such a coalition could improve communication among the groups which deal with child abuse, the department said. That would help get rid of the fragmented approach that results when there are so many different groups working on the same problem.

Lockheed Payoffs Reported

BURBANK, Calif. (AP) — Lockheed Aircraft Corp. utilized multimillion-dollar foreign payoffs starting in 1970 in an effort to stay afloat financially, according to a company report.

The report, compiled by a special committee, said top Lockheed management authorized between $30 million and $38 million in questionable payments abroad to promote product sales.

It said the payoffs were generally concealed from the company's board of directors and that employees who questioned the payments were told to shut up or their careers would suffer.

KELLEY EXPLAINS 'INVESTIGATION'

I would like to set the record straight about the alleged "investigation" of my office by the Governor that was reported (by Associated Press) in your paper on May 14.

The Governor's office was not then, nor is it now, conducting an investigation of me or my office. As the Governor's office said:

"Allegations that have been in and out of litigation and the press for a long time have been submitted by a citizen to the (state) administrative board."

"On the basis of an initial review of the material by the Governor's legal counsel there would appear to be no substance to the allegations."

As the state's chief law enforcement officer I understand your stories hinting at investigations of me or my office are interesting news. But in my role as the state's chief investigator I am also familiar with how many so called "investigations" are nothing more than routine checks of what proves to be totally inaccurate and groundless allegations.

Such is the case with the so called "investigation" of me in connection with the Holloway Construction company.

One additional fact should be added. The agreement between the state and the Holloway Construction company, which is at the root of this episode, was unanimously approved by the state administrative board. In addition to myself, the members of the board at that time included Governor Milliken, Lieutenant Governor James J. Damman, Secretary of State Richard Austin, State Treasurer Allison Green, and superintendent of Public Instruction, John W. Porter.

ASK THEM YOURSELF

Send the question, on a postcard, to "Ask," Family Weekly, 641 Lexington Ave., New York, N.Y. 10022. We'll pay $5 for published questions. Sorry, we can't answer others.

FOR KATE JACKSON, star of Charlie's Angels

I went to school with a Kate Jackson in Des Moines, Iowa. I'm wondering if you're that girl. —Joan Brady, Council Bluffs, Iowa

● No. I was born in Birmingham, Ala. (where I went to high school), and my parents are Hogan and Ruth Jackson. Dad is a wholesaler of building materials. Jenny, my older sister, is a teacher. I went to the Univ. of Mississippi, then later to Birmingham Southern Univ. as a drama student. But thanks for asking.

FOR MARVIN KALB, CBS broadcaster

Since your return to the air, you're only shown from the waist up. Is there more to your illness than the stated "bad back" reason? —Mrs. Anne B. Roundtree, Suffolk, Va.

● No, there was nothing "more to my illness" than a bad back, which is better — but still not right. Cameramen usually "shoot" the correspondent from the waist up. I am usually seated, or standing, but you see only the waist up. There's nothing wrong with my legs or ankles — they're just irrelevant to my TV appearance.

FOR CECIL D. ANDRUS, Secretary of the Interior

Is our water problem so serious because of lack of quantity or lack of adequate distribution? —Bill Hill, Langdon, N.D.

● Unfortunately, it isn't that simple. This winter there was too much snow in the East and too little in the West, leading some people to suggest that snow be shipped by train from upstate New York to the Rockies. But I don't think that transferring water from region to region is the answer. We need better planning and more intensive conservation. We have to learn to live with nature instead of always fighting it.

FOR TINA TURNER, recording star

What do you dislike most about your profession? —C.D., Washington, D.C.

● The noise. Although I might look as if I'm enjoying all that din, I'm not. It disturbs me. Most musicians these days play too loud, and it's not true that one becomes immune to it after a while. After a session of loud noise in a small space, I feel I need a month's rest in the country.

FOR VERONA S. MEEDER, Amy Carter's schoolteacher
Has Amy's presence enhanced the overall learning atmosphere in your classroom? —Karia Yannotta, Tipton, Mo.

● Yes, because the Carters' decision to send Amy to public school has put the class in the public spotlight. The students know they're being watched, and the result has been stimulating and motivating. Here's hoping the spotlight will spread to include the entire public-school system, so that students, faculty and administration will know that people really care what's happening.

FOR CARMEN SALVINO, pro bowler

Is brains more important for bowling expertise than brawn? —S.C., Corpus Christi, Texas

● Absolutely not. After all, 130-pound bowlers are champions. Bowling is by far one of the more scientific sports, involving math, physics, chemistry, rhythm and intelligence. It's also like any other sport that requires skill; you must practice daily in order to maintain a professional plateau.

FOR ARTHUR FIEDLER, conductor, Boston Pops Orchestra

Why do you always shake the concert master's hand at the start of each concert? —B.K. Bristol, Normal, Ill.

● It's my (and every conductor's) way of greeting the entire orchestra. It's a kind of a "master" handshake because it's impossible, of course, to pump the hand of every musician in the orchestra. It's like saying, "Hello. I'm happy to be making music with all of you again."

FOR GINGER ROGERS, actress

What keeps you so youthful and slender? —Mrs. P.M. Jago, Ford, N.J.

● Exercise, not diet. It's not what you eat, it's the way you work it off that counts. I average 45 minutes a day on workouts. I believe in sit-ups and push-ups. Outdoors, it's golf, tennis and a swim. I never get tired when I exercise — only if I don't. Nothing perks me up like a session at the ballet bar.

FOR THE "ASK THEM YOURSELF" EDITOR

Does Jackie Onassis ever go anywhere alone? Every time I read about her, it's at this glamorous event or with that dashing escort. —I.S., Torrance, Calif.

● Yes she does. Just recently she was spotted, lunching by herself, at a chic Manhattan restaurant. She had her nose deep in the new best seller Raise the Titanic. The book is published by Viking Press, where she's an editor. Another time she strolled along New York's First Avenue, popped into a small coffee shop to use the phone, and the snackers almost fainted from shock as she sat down and chatted with some of them.

FOR LEON URISH, author of Trinity

How did you react the first time you saw someone reading one of your books? —A.N.S., Poughkeepsie, N.Y.

● Although it must have been a very satisfying reaction, I don't remember my first experience. I do recall, however, an experience with Battle Cry in San Diego back in 1953. I had shipped out to the Pacific as a Marine Corps private in World War II and now was revisiting San Diego a decade later — almost like a scene out of a bad TV script. At midnight, I walked down to the bookstore, and when I saw the windows filled with my book, I was quite overcome.

PRO AND CON

Should There Be A Curfew For Young People?

PRO B. R. Baker, Chief of Police, Portland, Oregon

Yes. Our position is determined by experience. First, parents have demonstrated that they appreciate this reinforcement of parental guidelines. With this background, schools, clubs and youth organizations schedule their events so that the young people will be able to be home at a reasonable hour. The curfew also enables law-enforcement officers to protect those young people who unknowingly stray into areas of high-crime incidence late at night. We are able to return them to their parents with the advice that they are more likely to be the victim or become involved in criminal activity at these hours.

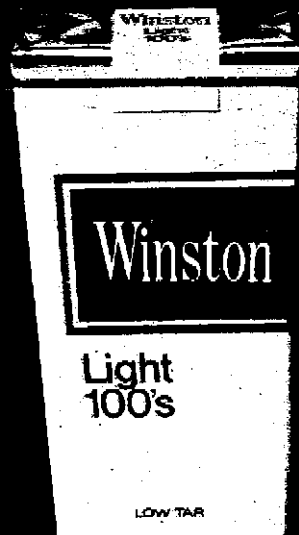

CON Aryeh Neter, Executive Director, American Civil Liberties Union

No. Curfew laws for youths are supposed to curb crime. Not only do they fail to achieve their purpose, they violate the constitutional rights of parents as well as those of the young people themselves. Youths on their way to and from night-time employment, church or school-sponsored activities, or simply to an innocent social gathering, are liable to be stopped by the police and could spend the night in jail. Curfew laws also usurp the prerogatives of parents, who are deprived of the right to decide when their children are mature enough to come and go after dark.

By Hal Higdon

In 1960 Johnny Rutherford, 22 years old, crew-cut hair, traveled from his home in Fort Worth, Texas, to watch the Indianapolis 500 for the first time. As a boy, each Memorial Day he had hung on every word of Sid Collins's radio broadcasts. Now he was there at the Speedway along with 300,000 people, absorbing the excitement of what Collins called the "Greatest Spectacle in Racing."

What were his reactions? What did he think then when he saw the winner being fêted in Victory Lane? "Mmmmmmm," said Rutherford, displaying the cool that most championship drivers use to conceal their emotions from the public. "I knew it was a place I had to get to some day."

Rutherford won the 500 in 1974 and 1976 and in an interview before this year's race said that he hoped to tie A. J. Foyt this Memorial Day weekend in number of Indy wins by an active driver. But the road to Victory Lane was long and difficult.

Born in Coffeyville, Kan., on March 12, 1938, the son of an Air Force sergeant, Rutherford grew up traveling from base to base. "When I was a youngster, I was on the puny side and had asthma as well. Until I was six years old, I didn't know what it was like to go outside in the winter."

He later played football, baseball and ran track, but loved auto-racing the most. Just before turning 21, he built a modified race car that he drove at the Devil's Bowl Speedway in Dallas, a track carved out of the side of a rock quarry.

"I had to struggle because I didn't have good equipment," recalled Rutherford. "I've driven some fairly atrocious cars during my career. Maybe that's what people noticed about me more than anything: that I did run hard even in poor cars."

One of the most frustrating aspects of auto-racing is that success depends so much on equipment. The driver must rely on the half-dozen or more crewmen in his pit to make that car perform. And other than having the fastest wheels in town, it is impossible to determine why some drivers win and others do not. When asked what makes a driver great, drivers answer: good eyesight, fast reflexes, the ability to concentrate and experience. But, in fact,

Hal Higdon's latest book, Fitness After Forty, deals with sports for middle-aged men. He now is writing a book on Johnny Rutherford.

After 10 years of disappointment, Johnny Rutherford arrived at the top to become one of the few drivers to win the Indianapolis 500 twice.

Betty and John Rutherford. "After our marriage," she said, "I used to go to the track not hoping Johnny would win but wondering who would get hurt. I finally decided to adopt a policy of not worrying until things happen to worry about."

they don't know.

Rutherford drove in the Indy 500 for the first time in 1963. He lasted only 46 laps. An oil plug broke. It was the first of 10 consecutive no-finishes for him at Indy.

Two cars collided in front of him in 1964, and he slid into their flaming wreckage. He also crashed in 1967. The other reasons for his failure to finish read like the order list for your local garage: rear end, fuel tank, header, oil line, connecting rod.

Rutherford missed the 1966 race because of a serious injury suffered in a sprint-car race on a dirt track the month before the 500. He was driving behind Mario Andretti, whose car tossed a chunk of dirt into his face. Rutherford spun, struck another car and flipped. He broke both arms, and complications with the right arm necessitated nine operations.

Rutherford did not mind the injury as much as losing valuable career time. "The accident really set me back," he recalled. "I was national sprint-car champion the year before. I had won my first champ-car race in Atlanta. I had to start all over."

If Rutherford harbored any fears about climbing back into the seat of a race car, he did not display them — or did not admit them. "You can't have fears if you're a race driver," he insisted. "If you're worried about crashing, you find some other job."

His attractive wife, Betty, echoed his remarks. "There's no need to worry about something until there's something to worry about," she said calmly. Betty was a surgical nurse from an Indianapolis medical center working the infield hospital in 1963, Rutherford's rookie year. He passed her on his way to the track and winked. She waved back. Later he asked for a date.

They dated in May, became engaged in June and married in July. Their two children are named Johnny Rutherford IV (eight) and Angela (six).

In 1970 Rutherford missed qualifying for the pole at Indy by one-tenth of a second, one one-hundredth of a mile-per-hour. Such is the margin between immortality and anonymity. Two weeks later in the race, he failed to finish again.

Rutherford's race team disintegrated following the 1972 season. Soon after, however, he received a phone call from Teddy Mayer, director of Team McLaren. Mayer wanted Rutherford to drive for him. Mayer flew from Detroit, offered terms over lunch, typed up a contract at a motel, and they signed it in a garage.

Meeting Mayer provided Rutherford with the major break he had been looking for. The McLaren car then was the hottest racing machine at Indianapolis and Rutherford qualified on the pole in 1973 with a record speed of 198.413 m.p.h. Alas, oil overflow problems caused him to spend several laps in the pits. He finished ninth in a race shortened to 332.5 miles by rain. He still failed to go the full 500 miles, but at least he was on the track when the checkered flag fell.

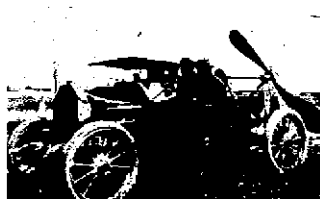

Most important, as Rutherford later would say, he finally found a racing team that wanted to race as hard as he did. "Racing was a business with them," he explained. "Almost everyone else I had driven for considered it a hobby."

He also was learning what may be the most important lesson at Indianapolis: patience. Drivers must understand the limitations of their machines and themselves and not attempt to exceed those limitations. They must drive fast, but not so fast that they risk either themselves or their equipment by irrational movements. Indy cars are well-balanced, finely tuned machines for which brute strength is not necessary. It may even be detrimental. Thus, along with patience, concentration and smoothness are needed to sit in a race car at Indianapolis and to rivet attention on the next turn.

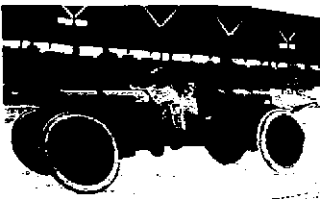

But in 1974 it seemed Rutherford would need more than skill and experience. Bad luck continued to plague him. A burned piston on qualification day caused him to wait until the next day to qualify. His time ranked second only to that of A. J. Foyt, but according to Indy's rules, he had to start the 500 in 25th place.

Nobody had won Indy from that far back in more than four decades. Nevertheless, he moved up steadily through the field and, by the 21st lap, was in second place behind Foyt. Then he waited. After a slow pit stop by Foyt, he assumed the lead. Foyt later resumed the lead. Rutherford continued to wait.

On the 140th lap, Rutherford noticed brown stains on his windshield. It was oil from a ruptured oil line — on Foyt's machine. After Foyt dropped out, Rutherford cruised the remaining laps to his first finish at Indy — and his first win. "I always said," he commented afterwards, "that if I ever finished this race, I'd win it."

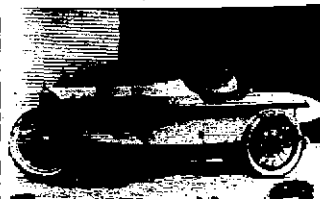

This 1910 Overland, averaging 60 m.p.h., lost a 5-mile race to a plane by 4 seconds.

Ray Harroun won the first 500 in 1911. His Marmon averaged 74.59 m.p.h.

René Thomas won the 1914 500 in a Delage. Eddie Rickenbacker finished 10th.

In 1915 Ralph DePalma, one of racing's greatest drivers, won the 500 in a Mercedes.

THE HIGH COST OF LOSING

It can cost $7,000 a day to put a car on the track at Indianapolis.

By John Devaney

Look back at all the Indianapolis 500's since 1911, and what you remember best is not the grins of winners like Johnny Rutherford but the shattered looks and hopes of those who almost won. There was the impish Eddie Sachs telling people: "All I think about — listen to me — all I think about is winning the 500."

In 1961 Eddie seemed to have won as his blood-red roadster hurtled at 170 miles an hour toward a flag only 10 miles of track away. The car lurched. Eddie straightened it, looked back and saw a white strip on the right rear, a warning that the tire may blow at any minute, plastering metal, bone and flesh against Indy's hard gray walls. Behind Eddie by less than a mile hung A. J. Foyt. If Eddie turned into the pits to change the tire, Foyt would zoom by to take the lead. But if Eddie didn't pit, he could wind up worse than second — he could wind up dead. Eddie hesitated. He whirled another lap — his 197th. Three more to go, about seven miles. He made his decision and veered into the pits.

Frantically, the crew changed the tire, and Eddie lunged out as Foyt thundered by. Eddie pushed to catch up, but Foyt bolted by the checker eight seconds ahead to win a finish that was the second-closest in 500 history. Sachs went to the garage and wept. He was never to win a 500. Three years later he rammed into an exploding car at Indy and died in a ball of orange flame.

Indeed, there are only a few who take out of a 500 what they must put into it. An engine costs $25,000, and a driver may burn out four or five of them in the four weeks of testing and qualifying. An owner can spend $7,000 a day on fuel, tires, track fees and salaries to a team of a dozen or more. It costs $25,000 to house and feed a team for the 30 days of Indy. Last year's winner, Johnny Rutherford, collected $256,000 for his team. The driver usually gets 40 percent, the chief mechanic at least 10 percent. After the owner has paid them and the other expenses, he might not have enough left for his motel bill.

"Now, only millionaires can own race cars," says owner-driver A. J. Foyt, winner of three 500's. Gone are such dreamers as Andy Granatelli, who came to the Speedway in 1946, towing a racer behind a Buick. His tired car did no better than it deserved. Two years later he rammed another car into the Speedway wall. But Andy lived and later became a millionaire selling a special-use oil product. Finally, in 1969, he put $200,000 into two hunks of machinery and won a 500.

The all-time hard-luck champ of Indy may be cowboy-hatted Lloyd Ruby. In four of five races from 1966 to 1970 he led the pack only to feel a car die underneath him. What he had to say after his last disappointment could have been said by Eddie Sachs and all the near-winners before and since: "It just wasn't meant for me to win at this place."

John Devaney is the author of more than 15 sports books. Photographs of the 500 and its cars are from his latest book, The Indianapolis 500: A Complete Pictorial Guide (Rand McNally & Co.).

Part of the 1928 Indy crowd. An estimated 150,000 to 175,000 attended that race. More than 300,000 are expected this year.

Trolley in their future. After an absence of 50 years, a trolley car (this one horse-drawn) will brighten weekends in the village of Northport, New York, this summer. Credit the revival to the imagination and effort of a "future studies" class at Northport High. Seeing this earlier mode of mass transportation as a tourist attraction for today, the class took up the offer of a local merchant to donate a 19th century vehicle for the project. After all necessary approvals were granted, the students set up a corporation and raised funds to refurbish the trolley, buy a couple of sturdy horses, and meet expected initial operating costs. They'll charge 50 cents a ride, and they hope the trolley will attract enough visitors to become self-sustaining by next year.

Auto-mation. In contrast, consider a think-tank forecast for cars of the future: they'll be computers-on-wheels, with digital dashboard readouts on road, traffic, speed, and weather conditions. They'll have cruise-control features to adjust braking and acceleration automatically, and to keep safe distances between vehicles. If drivers are tired, intoxicated, or close to collision, sensors will override and assume command. Other computers will help everyone use energy more efficiently. Also, household robots, linked to computers, will mow lawns, mix martinis, pay bills, detect fires, act as watchdogs, and even tutor youngsters. When will it all happen? Maybe by the year 2000. Maybe before. The technology is all there. The problem: it would probably cost about $100,000 to produce a household robot.

"Gentlemen! I think you've overlooked a key scientific element!"

Danger ahead. Everybody knows the U.S. is heavily dependent on foreign sources of crude oil. But, if current policies don't change, the nation may have to import more and more of its gasoline. That's because price controls discourage investment in new U.S. refineries (as do extremely stringent environmental regulations). If the red tape isn't cut fast, shortages of made-in-America refined products could result.

We're grinning. Pat Moore is a Davis, California, woman who markets a product she calls a "solar clothes dryer." It comes in a snappy box emblazoned with a smiling sunburst. Inside: 15 feet of clothesline and 15 clothespins. Like most solar devices, you need a conventional backup system on rainy days.

WHAT'S PRINCESS ANNE REALLY LIKE?

She's 26 now, and she seems ready to take her place in the royal family in a very special way.

By Graham and Heather Fisher

On her first visit here, Great Britain's Princess Anne did not leave a favorable impression with the press or with the public, so she will doubtless hope to make amends for that occasion when she flies to Maryland on June 18 to unveil a statue of her namesake at Centreville in Queen Anne County.

Anne is no longer the uncertain, insecure, rather confused teenager she was when she stayed with the Nixons back in 1970. Twenty-seven this August, her fourth wedding anniversary coming up in November, she is now a secure and mature young matron whose first child will be born this fall.

Not that marriage has changed her into either a submissive wife or a royal milksop. There is still a good deal of her father's arrogance in her — "plain arrogant" one mass-selling British tabloid labeled her earlier this year — and she certainly has a hangover of her maternal grandfather's fiery temper. King George VI, when he was displeased, would give vent to his wrath in some of the saltiest language ever heard within the hallowed confines of Buckingham Palace. Anne, in similar circumstances, can be equally forthright.

Like her aunt, Princess Margaret — and quite unlike brother Charles — Anne is a natural rebel. Charles, for instance, when his school days were over, was happy to go along with his parents' suggestion that he should go to college. But not Anne. "I want to ride," she told her parents when they were discussing her future. "It's the one thing I do well and that everyone can see I do well."

She does ride well — well enough to have represented Britain in last year's Olympics. Like her husband Mark Phillips, she is mad about horses and has been so since she was a small girl. She now has plans for running her own training and breeding establishment and, with this in view, is having new stables built at Gatcombe Park, the 10-bedroom country mansion set in some 700 acres that the Queen recently bought her and Mark.

But whatever criticism may be leveled against Anne, and there has been much over the years, it can never be said that she lacks either determination or grit.

She demonstrated her grit when a madman tried to kidnap her as she drove home after attending a charity film show. "Don't be so silly," she told him coolly as he waved a gun at her, seized her by the wrist

Graham and Heather Fisher are the authors of The Crown and the Ring: The Royal Family; The Queen's Life and the soon-to-be-published Charles, the Man and the Prince.

The Princess and husband Mark Phillips.

and tried to drag her from her car. Four people, including her driver and bodyguard, were gunned down in the kidnap attempt, but only two days later the Princess was again out and about on public display. "It's no good sitting down and brooding about it," she said.

Her steely determination was equally demonstrated the year she won the European Eventing Championship. Only six weeks before the trials to select the British team she underwent surgery for the removal of an ovarian cyst. Hospitalization left her muscles slack and flabby. She hardened her hands with endless games of deck tennis and toughened her legs by running up and down mountains. But time was against her; her horse unseated her in the trials, and she was not picked for the team.

Refusing to accept defeat, she entered the championship as an individual rider and won it against the cream of British, Russian, French, Italian and Irish riders by taking some very risky shortcuts during the arduous cross-country section.

In public life Anne is accustomed to having her every whim respected. In her private life with Mark, she has found that she has to give as well as take. She may tap an impatient toe if she thinks Mark is dragging things out at a party, for instance, but she still has to wait until he is ready to leave.

In private, Mark can be every bit as strong willed as his royal wife, and so far, he has resisted all attempts to bestow a title upon him. "He wants to lead an uncomplicated life centered around his army career and his horses," a friend told us, "and he thinks a title would complicate things."

But the pressure on him to become Earl of this or that will assuredly mount now that Anne is pregnant. The Queen will not want any grandchild of hers to be brought up as plain Master or Miss Phillips. In fact, no one is more delighted about the pregnancy than the Queen. She has long said that she would like a grandchild "while I am still young enough to enjoy being a grandmother." In November, if all goes well, she will get her wish.

FIFTY YEARS AGO this May, the hearts and minds of millions around the world were stirred as never before. For America, it was one of our proudest moments.

A 25-year-old airmail pilot named Charles A. Lindbergh accepted the challenge to fly solo nonstop from New York to Paris — an act as daring in its time as any that can be imagined.

On May 20, 1927, Lindbergh's plane, "The Spirit of St. Louis," took off from Roosevelt Field, Long Island. Lindbergh was airborne and alone. He had no radio; his only instruments for getting him safely across 3,500 miles of ocean were a compass, a sextant, and the chart on his knees.

Thirty-three and one-half hours later, on May 21, he landed at Le Bourget Aerodrome, right on schedule. The moment Lindbergh touched down, he became the greatest hero the twentieth century has ever known.

Now, to commemorate the 50th anniversary of this historic event and to honor Lindbergh's heroism, the Danbury Mint proudly announces a unique work of art — an historically authentic sculpture of "The Spirit of St. Louis."

Fine pewter handcrafted to artistic excellence

Every detail of the aircraft has been carefully authenticated and is accurately portrayed. This extraordinary work of art will be cast in fine pewter, and each sculpture will be individually hand-finished and hand-polished.

As an owner of "The Spirit of St. Louis," you will understand why pewter is the sculptor's metal. For it is unsurpassed in its ability to retain every detail, to reveal the deep contrasts of light and dark that give great sculpture its remarkable realism.

An important opportunity

"The Spirit of St. Louis" is the kind of collectible that connoisseurs seek, but seldom find. In years to come, others will envy your foresight in acquiring such a unique and irreplaceable treasure.

As a beautiful work of art to enhance your home, as an heirloom to be cherished for generations, as an inspiring tribute to a great American hero, "The Spirit of St. Louis," will be a superb possession.

The opportunity to own this masterpiece is only briefly here, then gone forever. To acquire "The Spirit of St. Louis," simply mail the form below directly to the Danbury Mint. But please be sure your order is postmarked no later than June 28, 1977.

YOU SHOULD HEAR WHAT YOU ARE MISSING

One of our favorite comedians, who also has a hearing loss, writes of the importance of good hearing.

By Norm Crosby

It's an extinct pleasure for me, as National Chairman of the Better Hearing Institute, to have these few moments of dissipation with you nice people on a matter of utmost urgency and crucial insurrection.

You know, I've made a whole career out of entertaining people by butchering the English language. It's funny stuff for people who catch all the lines. But it's not for people who can't hear them. And what they miss hearing can be the difference between a life of happiness and one of withdrawal and loneliness.

More than 14 million Americans — one out of every 15 of us — suffer from hearing disorders — including many who are famous. The tragedy is that only a fraction does anything about the problem. Yet most could be helped through amplification or therapy.

Take me, for example. I have a hearing loss. I had surgery on both ears, and I wear two hearing aids. I don't wear them all the time, though. Just when I want to hear.

Seriously, though, hearing loss is no laughing matter. In fact, it's our nation's number-one handicapping disability. That's why I'm taking the time to write this article during Better Hearing and Speech Month, an intensive information effort conducted each May by the Better Hearing Institute and other organizations to focus public attention on hearing and speech disorders.

People of all ages and from all walks of life have hearing impairments. More than three million are school-age children. More than half are over age 65.

Many are well known to you and me. A few of the notable personalities who have overcome hearing problems are pro football halfback Larry Brown, actress Nanette Fabray and actor-comedian Art Carney.

Washington Redskin Larry Brown was voted the National Football League's Most Valuable Player in spite of his hearing loss.

"Vince Lombardi noticed that I moved well on plays when I was lined up to the left of the quarterback," Larry told me, "but that I hesitated in getting out from the other side. 'Are you hard-of-hearing, Larry?' he asked. I told him I wasn't, but he said get it checked."

"My hearing loss was diagnosed as nerve damage. Vince got permission from Commissioner Pete Rozelle to have a special hearing aid built right into my helmet. I told him I didn't need it, he said I did, and he was right."

Like Larry Brown, Nanette Fabray succeeded in her chosen profession despite a hearing loss. A victim of otosclerosis, Nan underwent several operations and wears a hearing aid. "A performer has to hear her audience to really reach them," she admitted. "I didn't know what I was missing until I got help for my hearing. When I finally accepted my hearing problem, I realized that part of my reluctance had been not knowing of anyone else who was young and successful and also had a hearing loss. That's why I decided to become active in education and service to the hearing impaired."

Audience response plays an important role for Academy Award-winning Best Actor Art Carney as well. "Because of it," Art says, "good hearing is important. I have a hearing problem, but I got help. And what a difference it's made."

Do you have a hearing problem? If so, arrange for a checkup immediately. For a free booklet, We Overcame Hearing Loss, write to me at the Better Hearing Institute, 1430 K Street, N.W., Suite 600, Washington, D.C. 20005.

Give our country a college education.

As an Army ROTC graduate, you bring more than training and gold bars to your new job in the Army.

You also bring a college education which makes you one of our country's most valuable assets. Why? One reason is the wealth of experiences and ideas you bring with you. This enables the Army to better relate to an ever-changing society.

And since you'll be an Army officer, you'll have plenty of opportunities to put your ideas to work. In fact, you'll be running your own show, right out of college.

Another reason we value your education so highly is that the people you'll be leading are better educated and more highly motivated than ever before. This makes your job as an Army officer more of a challenge.

To help you meet this challenge when you get out of school, we'll help you while you're in by giving you a living allowance of up to $1,000 each school year for your last two years of college.

There are also opportunities for scholarships that cover tuition, books and lab fees.

That way, you can make the most of your education. And when you graduate, our country can make the most of it too.

ARMY ROTC. LEARN WHAT IT TAKES TO LEAD.

meals or excusing them from chores because they are in the middle of a TV program and don't want to be interrupted?

In families in which children watch a lot of television, parents sometimes try to make up for lost opportunities to communicate with their kids by bringing them food and drinks while they sit before the TV. Some parents will even do children's assigned jobs for them rather than interrupt them in the middle of a program. But regularly waiting on children who are old enough to help themselves may have unfortunate effects on their development. Long past the time when children ought to see themselves as capable and self-reliant people, they may continue to feel dependent and helpless.

Do you or your children watch TV during meals?

In many families, mealtimes, and particularly the evening meal, provide the only chance for the whole family to gather together and act as a family. Of course, this is not always a rosy situation. Problems, tensions and hard feelings, as well as companionship and an exchange of ideas and experiences, can arise when the family gets together at the dinner table. Perhaps this is why so many families choose an easy out and eat their meals in front of the TV screen. But by using television as a buffer to avoid facing their problems, too many families go on year after year with little human contact. When the children are grown, such families may find that they are merely a collection of people who have little in common.

Do your children often spend time watching TV with their friends?

Television's effects on children's play worry teachers and child specialists around the country. For play, they believe, is the main source of such important aspects of social learning as self-control and getting along with others in give-and-take situations. Especially during make-believe play, children have the chance to work out inner problems and angry feelings of helplessness or jealousy or fear. When children spend their play time watching television, instead of playing with one another, these opportunities are lost.

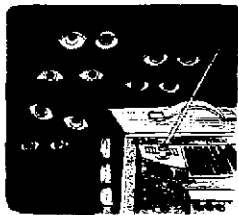

When your child is home sick, does he spend most of the day watching television?

Many parents who normally set limits on their young children's television-viewing make an exception during times of sickness. It certainly makes life easier for the parent. But being sick presents a child with a unique opportunity for time alone with a parent. Before television came into the home, being sick, no matter how unpleasant the symptoms, was often an event that a child treasured in later memory because special interests were often born during days of sickness.

Do you use "No TV" as a punishment in your family?

This form of punishment indicates that television-viewing has rapidly become one of the most important pleasures in a child's life, perhaps the most important pleasure. If that is so, then it becomes easier to understand why parents have such a hard time controlling viewing time. It's hard to deny children something they seem to love so deeply, to explain to them why they should turn off the TV set once in a while. But parents who use "No TV" as a threat and as a punishment are showing the child that they, too, feel that television is the greatest possible pleasure available to him, and that this is all right with them. How, then, can they hope to control TV-viewing in their family and to reintroduce the pleasures of conversation, games and family activities that might bring more satisfaction to everyone?

Do you have more than one TV set in your home?

When television first arrived, people predicted that the new medium would help keep the family together. But in those days it was unthinkable for a family to have two or three sets. With only one set in the home, viewing was more likely to become a family activity. Today, nobody has to give up a program just because another family member wants to watch a different show — one simply watches one's program on a different set. But when the family splits up to watch television, the ties that bind them as a cohesive unit with common activities and common goals are loosened.

Finally, to solve the alienation that all the TV-viewing excesses create, parents — as a team — must set up a schedule of viewing and not depart from it. It is surprising, after initial protests, how easily children fall into a new pattern and go on to new pursuits. The habit of parents using TV as baby sitter is harder for them to break than it is for the children who, after all, are only losing an ill-used toy.

Choosing The Right Person To Take Care Of Your Child

Working mothers with experience in hiring people to take care of children agree that the most reliable referrals usually come from other mothers. You also can check classified ads in the newspaper, employment agencies and the Yellow Pages under "Baby-Sitters — Home Service." In any case, you should exercise special care in making your choice. Here are some tips to help you find the right person:

- When interviewing a prospective helper, don't hesitate to explain in detail exactly what kind of care you want for your child.
- Observe the reactions of the person you're interviewing; she should be enthusiastic about your views, ask questions about your child and be eager to meet him.
- The person you hire should share the same basic philosophy of child-rearing that you do. An open-playroom type of mother and a disciplinarian helper will only mean conflict, and the difference in attitudes will confuse your child's understanding of what is expected.
- You should let the helper know exactly what her responsibilities will include — light housekeeping, driving, extra hours, simply looking after the child or also teaching him manners, neatness, etc.
- When a preliminary interview goes well, invite the applicant back for a meal or informal chat with your child and husband. See how your child and the applicant interact; they should show an interest in each other. When the applicant leaves, ask your child his opinion.
- Be sure to check references.

WHAT IN THE WORLD...

Are Women's Health And Happiness Linked To Faith?

Women are deeply religious and becoming more so. And the more religious they are, the healthier and happier they are. Those are the findings of a survey by a national women's magazine, which drew answers to a 97-part questionnaire from 65,000 women readers. It "will surprise many Americans that an impressive number of American women have embarked on a religious awakening," the magazine says. Ninety-six percent of them believe in God, and 95 percent describe themselves as religious, with 57 percent saying they have become more so in the past five years. Beyond that, a cross-reference analysis of 2,500 of the responses found that the more religious a woman is, the happier she is, that "very religious" women are least likely to have feelings of anxiety or worthlessness, that they suffer less from headaches and that they are least likely to report lapses of sexual enjoyment. Such negative symptoms were found to be most common for women who are only "slightly religious." Ironically, the few definite nonbelievers matched the strong believers in health and happiness, leading the magazine to comment: "The woman who is struggling with her doubts is the one with the headache."

Install Your CB Carefully

Do-it-yourself installation of base-station citizen-band (CB) antennas can have tragic consequences, warns the U.S. Consumer Product Safety Commission (CPSC). Ninety-two deaths and 156 injuries associated with CB antennas mounted alongside private dwellings on masts or on towers were reported to the Commission last year. The CPSC urges consumers to take the following precautions when installing or removing a CB antenna.

- Avoid putting antennas up anywhere in the vicinity of power lines. If this cannot be avoided, contact the electric company for further instructions.
- Tie off the antenna with a rope, so if it should fall during installation or removal, it will not touch the power lines.
- If you have questions, call this toll-free hotline: 800-638-2666.

Change In U.S. Eating Habits Predicted

A turnaround in some of America's food habits, based on the shrinking size of households and the aging process, is predicted by Teresa Shaffer, a food and nutrition expert at the University of Nebraska.

- She expects vegetable and fruit consumption to rise because small households and people living alone tend to eat more of these foods than larger households.
- Potato-eating probably will drop, because there will be more women, traditionally low consumers of spuds.
- Milk consumption will decline as a result of fewer teenagers and a stable or declining birth rate.
- Continued increases in consumption of red meat and poultry are expected, although at a slower rate because of the drop in the young male population.
- Unless today's teenagers carry their appetite for soft drinks and other sweets into adult life, sugar consumption is also expected to decline as the number of teens in the population declines.

Quick Takes

A new Government health profile reports an exciting improvement in the health of Americans since 1950, especially among men aged 25 to 44. Of the five leading causes of death a quarter-century ago, only suicide has increased. One, tuberculosis, has been virtually eliminated, and rates of death from heart disease and cancer have declined substantially. . . . Traditional high-school social science courses are drastically changing, according to Stanford University professor Richard Gross. He found that since 1961 enrollment in psychology courses has skyrocketed 321 percent. Sociology enrollment is up 175 percent, while once-standard courses are seeing significant drops in enrollment. "Civics" for example, is off by about 40 percent. . . . Americans — both men and women — still believe a joke is funnier if the butt of the humor is female. In a University of Wisconsin study, investigators found that students almost invariably rated jokes ridiculing women funnier than those poking fun at men. Surprisingly, when the butt of a joke was male, the Wisconsin women thought it even less funny than the male students did. . . . With prices soaring, the Alabama state prisons have decided that coffee is a luxury. Instead of serving it at every meal, inmates henceforth will be given coffee only on Sundays and holidays. . . . A firm in Buffalo is offering a special item to commemorate the Buffalo blizzard of 1977 — a vial of liquefied snow, on a special commemorative stand. Each purchase will also include a gift card and a booklet of reminiscences from the winter that dumped 188 inches of snow on New York's second-largest city.
